KITCHENER DEMANDS AID

Jurors Disagree in Insane Hospital Case

HARVARD FLAG O. K.

LEE WILL BE TRIED AGAIN

The jury in the case of Henry Lee, the Pierce Farm attendant who has been on trial in Suffolk Superior Court on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Charles R. Brown, an insane patient at the farm, reported a disagreement in a sealed report which was opened before Judge Quinn today.

It was said the jury stood six to six. The jury retired at 4.15 yesterday afternoon and sealed their report at 12.15 this morning, after finding that they could not agree on a verdict.

Both Lee and his wife, Mrs. Lee, who testified in his behalf at the trial, were in the courtroom. Lee was later taken to the detention room. It was announced that the District Attorney would order a new trial.

LEE LAST ON STAND.

The case was given to the jury after Lee had taken the stand in his own defence. Medical Examiner Leary had testified that Brown died as a result of strangulation, and that Brown had eight broken ribs and a fractured bone in the throat.

Lee denied he had made any assault on Brown. He said he had left the ward where Brown was confined at 1 a. m. and again at 4 a. m. during the night that Brown died. He said he had gone to assist his wife, Mrs. Edith Lee, in caring for other patients. When he returned he noticed Brown white and notified the supervisor.

He also testified that when he came back to the ward he found a man named Albrecht, known as a patient with homicidal tendencies, out of bed, but thought nothing of it at the time.

Mrs. Lee corroborated her husband's testimony.

PROSECUTION'S CLAIM.

It was the claim of District Attorney Lavelle, who argued for the prosecution, that Lee had told him originally that he had at no time been absent from the ward.

Daniel J. Hurley, chauffeur for Medical Examiner Leary, testified that at the time of the investigation into Brown's death, he heard Lee say in conversation with Mrs. Lee and a man: "If they take me, they're not to take the woman."

Dr. Edward Pease, house physician at the farm, said Lee told him he has not been out of the ward the night Brown died and had even eaten his midnight lunch there because Brown was restless.

"Lee told me Brown had resisted when he put into a pack (a cold wet sheet), but that no force was necessary," said the doctor. "He told me that force was necessary to put him back to bed."

SAYS HE WAS BRUISED.

Miss Elizabeth C. Zraunling, night supervisor, said she had seen Brown at 9 p. m. on the night he died and that there were "bruises on him."

Edmund J. Grandin, an attendant who was indicted with Lee, but whose indictment was not pressed, said he had noticed bruises about Brown's neck; that he had seen the patient Albrecht try to choke another patient and that he had not seen Lee use any violence toward Brown.

Brown died on the early morning of October 3. He was the son of Charles Barron, a Boston Museum stock company actor. Mr. and Mrs. Barron, both in deep mourning, attended the trial.

Commuters Held Up by Collision in the B. & M. Yard

A switching engine, with a heavy train behind it, sideswiped an inbound Waltham train near Tower B in the North Station yards early today, and for almost an hour traffic was blocked.

The brakes on the switching engine did not work sufficiently quickly to stop the heavy train it was hauling. Part of the wreckage struck Tower B and put the switching apparatus temporarily out of commission.

Inbound trains from the Fitchburg Division were transferred to the Southern Division, but even so commuters were delayed for half an hour.

No one was injured, and the actual damage was not great. No cars were derailed.

Daughter Claims Would-Be Suicide

"Agnes Dugan" the aged woman who slashed her throat in the waiting room of the South Station with suicidal intent, was taken from the City Hospital last night by a woman claiming to be her daughter. This woman refused to give her name or address to the hospital authorities. Before leaving, the Dugan woman said that her right name was Craig and said that her home was on Canton street, South End.

Scores in Jerusalem Starving to Death

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The Jews are dying by thousands of starvation in Jerusalem, according to Samuel Edelman, vice-consul of the United States in Palestine, who arrived here today on the liner Canopa from Naples.

"Two-thirds of the population of the city are Jews," said Mr. Edelman. "There is no industry in the city and they have to depend on charity."

Warren Brothers Sued by a Woman

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 28.—Miss Johanna Lyons entered suit here today for $5,000 against the Warren Brothers Company of Boston, who have a contracting job on Deer street. Miss Lyons suffered broken ribs and a broken shoulder, she claims, as a result of a fall which she blames on the company's work.

CRIMSON IS SAFE, SAYS RILEY

Assistant Attorney General Thomas P. Riley today put his O. K. on Harvard's red—or crimson—pennants.

Despite the decision of the Supreme Court that it is illegal to carry any emblem or flag of red, the Assistant Attorney-General declares that no court would decide against Harvard for flaunting its banner in public. He says the letter of the statute is opposed to its spirit. his is what he said:

"The statute as it reads would debar Harvard from carrying its distinctive flag. The letter of that statute is directed against any red banner.

"If the wording of the statute in its first clause read like this: 'No red or black flag which is the symbol of a society opposed to organized government,' etc., the interpretation of the statute and what follows would not apply to any organization like Harvard. At present, the statute is general. It is for this reason it can be made to apply to any society for the statute makes no exception.

"Notwithstanding this, no court would decide against Harvard University for carrying its own banner in a public way.

"The letter of that statute is opposed to its spirit and its spirit is much larger and broader than the mere letter will allow. I do not believe, as I have intimated before, that any harm will come to Harvard if found carrying its crimson banner in procession or upon any public function."

Harvard students, however, completed their plans today for a parade Saturday before the football game with Michigan, and in the parade they will carry their crimson flags. Should an arrest be made the students plan to make a test case of it.

The weather man is promising warm weather. Don't rejoice, for he says we are not going to have this warmth today or tomorrow. It might come the day after tomorrow.

A cold snap, which originated in the Lake region, has the whole eastern section of the country in its grasp. Although the weather for today will be fair, nevertheless, a stiff wind will blow, causing all to shiver and don heavier clothing.

The official weather forecasters claim that warmer weather throughout the country is sure to follow. They ought to know. The warm wave is slowly moving eastward in the wake of the freezing temperatures and frosts. Unless it gets lost on its way, New England will be sure to enjoy at least one more Summer day.

"BLESSINGS OF PEACE IN U. S."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—President Wilson today issued his annual Thanksgiving proclamation, setting Thursday, November 26, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and inviting the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship to render thanks to Almighty God.

The proclamation follows:

It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful Autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. The year that is now drawing to a close since we last observed our day of national thanksgiving has been, while a year of discipline because of the mighty forces of war and of change which have disturbed the world, also a year of special blessing for us.

It has been vouchsafed for us to remain at peace with honor and in some parts to succor the suffering and supply the needs of those who are in want. We have been privileged by our own peace and self-control in some degree to steady the counsels and shape the hopes and purposes of a day of fear and distress. Our people have looked upon their own life as a nation with a deeper comprehension, a deeper realization of their responsibilities as well as of their blessings and a keener sense of the moral and practical significance of what their part among the nations of the world may come to be.

The hurtful effects of foreign war in their own industrial and commercial affairs have made them feel the more fully and see the more clearly their mutual interdependence on one another and have stirred them to a helpful co-operation such as they have seldom practiced before. They have been quickened by a great moral stimulation. Their unmistakeable ardor for peace, their earnest piety and disinterested sympathy for those who are suffering, their readiness to help and to think of the needs of others have revealed them to themselves as well as to the world.

Our crops will feed all who need food; the self-possession of our people amid the most serious anxieties and difficulties and the steadiness and resourcefulness of our businessmen will serve our nations as well as our own.

The business of the country has been supplied with new instrumentalities and the energies of the world with new channels of trade and intercourse. The Panama Canal has been opened to the commerce of the nations. The two continents of America have been found in closer guise of friendship. New instrumentalities of international trade have been created which will be also new instrumentalities of acquaintance, intercourse and mutual service. Never before have the people of the United States been so situated for their own advantage or the advantage of their neighbors or so equipped to serve themselves and mankind.

NIECE OF WILSON DENIES KNOWING ALLEGED MASHER

Mrs. George Howe, known on the stage as Margaret Vale, who accuses Dr. Ernest C. White.

"The mashers rule Broadway," says Mrs. Howe. "If I go out dressed as a working girl I am not permitted to go more than ten blocks before I am insulted."

Mrs. George Howe.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Dr. Ernest C. White, who was sentenced to ten days in the workhouse by Magistrate Breen on October 19, for accosting on the street Mrs. George Howe, the niece of President Wilson, is at liberty under $500 bail, awaiting a hearing of his case, it was learned [illegible].

White, through his lawyer, [illegible] applied to Judge Rosalsky [illegible] the case reopened. The affidavit in which he pl[illegible] knew Mrs. Howe, who [illegible] the stage as Margaret [illegible] where, he says, he [illegible] her. In the police [illegible] accused Mrs. He[illegible] Paris custom.

White argues [illegible] Mrs. Howe was [illegible] opinion, as he [illegible] ences had been [illegible] Howe bore him [illegible]

He further plead[illegible] ence to his standard [illegible] trained from telling [illegible] that he and Mrs. Howe had been friends in Europe. As a final plea he declared he was a member of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps in France and had served as a surgeon in the battle of the Marne. In consequence, the affidavit has it, White was entertained extensively by his New York friends and had, on the night of the trouble, partaken of "more than one dinner."

MRS. HOWE AMAZED.

Mrs. Howe, in her attractive apartments, heard of White's affidavit with amazement. "I never saw this person before, in Paris or elsewhere," she said. "Really, he should be more specific. When did he meet me and about what did we quarrel? And what wonderful code of honor does he profess which permits him to grasp a woman's arm and peer in her face and refrain from telling a magistrate he has met her before."

He pleads he attended too many dinners. Rather early for even the first dinner. It was but 7 o'clock, or very little after, when he greeted me.

"Since I was insulted by this person I have received a score of letters from women who have been similarly treated by men. I received a letter from a Watertown, N. Y., newspaper which claimed that this man White was formerly an osteopath there, and had gained quite a reputation in that city.

"The mashers rule Broadway. The conditions are terrible. If I go out dressed as an ordinary working girl I am not permitted to go more than ten blocks before I am accosted and insulted."

100,000 MORE MEN NEEDED BY BRITISH ARMY

A London cable says that Lord Kitchener issued an appeal today for 100,000 more soldiers.

Weakening of the German offence in Belgium and the advance by the French armies on both wings along the Franco-Belgian border, is officially announced by Paris today.

Progress is reported between Crambia and Arras and northeast of Ypres. According to reports from many different sources the fighting has been terrific and the losses extremely heavy.

Berlin says that the allies have sustained severe losses, while the Central News Agency, London hears that the Germans have lost between 15,000 and 20,000 men along the Yser canal and between Nieuport and Menin.

RESULT STILL IN DOUBT.

Notwithstanding the loss of ground by the Germans near Dixmude, the opposing forces in this field of conflict are still locked in undecisive death struggle, according to a London cable today. The same authority says that the fighting has been of unparalleled ferocity. Back and forth across the crimson, corpse-choked Yser Canal, the dispatch says, the conflict has now raged for a week. Seven times the Germans succeeded in crossing to the west side only to be driven back by the British, French and Belgian troops.

The stream is choked with dead bodies. At some points the corpses have completely dammed the waterway and soldiers cross on the bodies of their fallen comrades.

In the battle of the North the opposing forces are so strong that it must be many days before a decisive result is attained by either side, despite the great losses which they are suffering and which grow greater as report follows report.

Along the old front, stretching from the River Oise to the Meuse, from which the Germans withdrew their best troops to strengthen the army which is attempting to advance along the coast, the French have been taking the offensive and to the north

BERYL GROGAN HAD HORROR OF BURIAL ALIVE

Mrs. Beryl Grogan Krause, the "dead girl" of Cambridge investigation of whose death from poison in Texas is to be ordered by her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Grogan, upon her arrival at her Dedham plantation Friday, had a horror of being buried alive.

Beryl concealed this dread. It has been a trait for generations in the family of her grandfather, the late Alvan Clarke, of Cambridge. It is a fear so vivid that Beryl's relatives on her mother's side shrink at the thought of having their remains placed in the ground.

Details of this strange family secret were given to the AMERICAN by Mrs. Grogan before her departure for Texas, where she is going to force the authorities to inquire into phases of her daughter's life and death on the ranch and to fight the claims of the Norman husband, Rudolph Krause, for the girl's body.

Mrs. Grogan told for the first time how she and her mother visited the Clark tomb at Mt. Auburn for days to satisfy the dying wish of her eighteen-year-old brother Alvan and how they drew back the cover of the casket to study the features through the glass.

"It may sound strange to outsiders," said Mrs. Grogan, "but father's people appear to have an aversion to burial in the ground. In a family way that and Beryl, in spite of her happy temperament, often spoke of it and had a perfect horror of being buried alive.

CONTRARY TO WISH.

"She has repeatedly asked me to see that death was certain. That is the reason why I doubt Krause and County Attorney Lewis of Brockton when they telegraphed that it was my daughter's dying wish to be buried in Texas. It is contrary to the wish of her life.

"Why didn't she mention it in the so-called 'suicide' letter? I couldn't count the times Beryl has mentioned that what she died she wanted to be placed in Grandfather Clark's tomb.

"I want Beryl's body and have it I shall. It will never repose in Texas soil. That is settled, now.

"After father and mother died we visited the tomb for a certain number of days at time, dying Beryl's wish. We did for brother and others. It has been a family custom.

WILL EXHUME BODY.

"When I reach Texas I am going to see why they did not take Beryl to the hospital in Bay City and how it was that when Dr. Moore left her better and she told him she wanted to live, her condition should have so suddenly changed. I shall insist on an autopsy.

"I don't expect to reach Rockwell until Friday night. No, of course, I will hold the funeral Thursday afternoon as announced by County Attorney Lewis, but I shall have the body exhumed."

SOME HUB SOCIETY WOMEN SLOW PAY, MODISTE ASSERTS

"Chiqueta" says that "some of the cream of Boston society are mighty bad about paying bills.

"I would rather do dressmaking for a girl who works for her money than for many society girls," she adds. "I would rather, for instance, make a gown for a stenographer who earns only $18 a week—well, no, I won't say just that, because she couldn't afford it—but I would rather make a gown for a girl or woman for $150 who is slow about paying her bill.

"Chiqueta" is "Chiquita, la Petite Modiste." Her own name is Helen Chiquita Wilhelmy, and she is essentially French, from neatly-shod feet to the plume at her broad-brimmed hat.

WINS COURT VERDICT.

"The petite one's philosophy on dressmaker's bills today was the result of her initiate in the legal experience of the day before, when she secured a verdict from Judge Emery Grover of the Dedham District Court against J. Eugene Cochrane, the Dedham polo player and clubman, of $189.95 for work done for his daughter Miss Eugenie Cochrane, society girl of twenty.

"Modiste must have their money like any one else in business," said the brown-eyed gownmaker today. "But the more money people have, the slower they are about paying.

"People who earn their money pay better for what they buy. They don't like to run bills. I get along all right with all my customers usually.

"I wondered, rather, that Miss Cochrane asked me not to send the bill to 'Daddy' until all the work was done. I did not like that. I thought her 'Daddy' would be willing to pay the bill as it went along, at the end of the month.

The bill on which the suit was brought was itemized as follows:

White chiffon gown	$75.00
White beaded rap (see note)	15.00
Flowered velvet belt	1.50
Alterations in blue gown	2.75
White crepe gown	85.00
Alterations in white crepe gown	10.00
Pink chiffon petticoat	25.00
White linen gown	25.00
Alterations in white linen gown	5.00
Total	$189.95

MOTHER'S TESTIMONY.

Miss Cochrane testified she ordered the goods. Mrs. Cochrane corroborated this. The mother admitted, however, that "Mr. Cochrane always paid for his daughter's clothes, but recently he protested against it."

"Chiqueta" testified that, when she sent the bill on July 1 last, she received back with a marginal note by Mr. Cochrane that he had not authorized his daughter to contract any such expense.

Mr. Cochrane did not testify but his counsel, Arnold Scott, argued that the bill was an overcharge, also that Mr. Cochrane was not responsible for it.

Judge Grover ruled that the bill should be paid in full.

BOY DECLARED MAD AT LARGE WITH PISTOL

John Kell, a Dorchester youth who is declared by the police to be insane, is at large in Boston with a revolver in his possession. Every police station in the city has been warned to be on the lookout for him.

Kell's mental condition became worse early today, the police said, and anxious from his bed he fired the revolver from the window of his home at No. 92 Willowwood street, Dorchester.

The shot caused a commotion in the district. People rushed from their houses into the streets. Somebody telephoned the police.

The auto patrol was dispatched full of reserves. By this time Kell had escaped, taking the revolver with him.

The police immediately got busy, fearing he might cause trouble on the streets. Patrolmen in every section of Dorchester were asked to aid in the search for him.

This is the police description of the youth:

Age—Nineteen.
Height—Medium.
Complexion—Medium.
Clothing—Blue suit. Wore a striped cap and black shoes and stockings.

Dandruff Heads Become Hairless

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will surely ruin your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

In view of the fact that no Republican Secretary of the Navy ever did anything to mention for the navy yard, it is perhaps a fortunate circumstance for the navy yard—and so for Massachusetts—that the Southern and other Democrats came into power.

AGED VICTIM OF 'DE LUXE' DEAL FEARED ASYLUM

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Letters from Glen F. Farmer, who is serving a prison term in Boston for frauds perpetrated in the sale of "rare" books, have carried a tragic story into the record of the government's action against James J. Farmer, father of Glen Farmer, "Colonel Bill" Hartley and the others of the Anglo-American Advisory Association, charged with using the mails in defraud. The men are on trial before Judge Foster in the Federal Court.

In the first letter, written at the Hotel Nottingham, Boston, on Aug. 2, 1910, read:

"My Dear Father: Inclosed is a copy of Mrs. Soper's letter and note. Your letter says nothing as to whether she sent the $1,000. Of course, I will have to answer this letter, and if I get the money you can send my check here. I will leave the first or next week for the Adirondacks to look up the business. I guess you can see from this woman's inclosed note send from her former letters I should pretty good at prospects. Your son,

"GLEN."

The inclosure in this letter was the following:

"Mr. G. F. Farmer:

"Dear Sir—The inclosed (a check) takes the funds upon which I counted to pay my August expenses, but I am quite ill, and the physicians tell my family it is all due to a severe nervous attack. They are very much alarmed and naturally anxious to know what it all means.

SHE GREW WEAKER EVERY DAY.

"It is two weeks today since I received the almost brutal letters. I am weaker each day, and feel I am just letting go my hold on affairs.

"I am doing more than the contract calls for, but you know that the $1,000 must count somewhere. I owe you receipt for that even. I have vouchers for a good deal regarding the other party.

"I am sending one of my maids for ink, else I could not do what I am doing now. Please address the receipt for this and the other check to Mrs. A. W.' for reasons explained. If you do not hear from me again it will be for the reason that I cannot manage it.

MRS. A. W. SOPER.

"First Lake, via Old Forge, N. Y."

Farmer paid his promised visit to Mrs. Soper, and on Aug. 12 he was from the Palmer House, Herkimer:

"My Dear Father: Just arrived from the Adirondacks."

WORKED ON HER FEARS.

"Her daughter was there when I arrived, and although the old lady was quite sick she saw me and had her daughter leave us alone. Selling her daughter I had come to see her regarding the exhibiting of some books, and in the course of conversation she let slip what I know more than clinches the contract for the balance of the $15,000, and that is she is afraid if her daughter finds it out she will have her put in an asylum as unable to handle her own business. That is an absolute fact, and is what has made the old lady so more than anything else.

"Well, I am going to close, trusting that within ten days will send a letter to you and ourselves to the extent of about $6,000 apiece.

"Your son,

"GLEN."

Motions that the indictment be dismissed so far as it affects Samuel T. Warfield and George M. Fisher were taken under advisement. If those motions are granted the defendants remaining will be James J. Farmer, "Col. Bill" and Thomas P. Dunn. The defence will open this morning, the testimony witnesses not being on hand yesterday.

Its first sailing in the Boston service will be on November 18 for San Pedro (the port of Los Angeles) and San Francisco.

TAKE 47 BODIES FROM BURNING FRANKLIN MINE

ROYALTON, Ill., Oct. 28.—Forty-seven bodies had been taken out of, or sighted in the burning Franklin Coal and Coke Company's mine, nine miles from here, today.

The number of men still reported missing varies from forty-seven to 106, because of conflicting reports of the number at work when the gas blast occurred. The most reliable estimate possible is 292 at work, seventy-nine dead, 106 still entombed and 107 saved.

One of the men brought to the surface last night revived when the fresh air struck his face. He rushed back into the mine to rescue his comrades. He led the party into the workings where he had been and was overcome and fell. His body was brought up this morning.

The mine is still burning and there is little hope any of the missing men can be saved.

Flood of Water Routs Pipe Thief

A flood of water from a supply pipe suddenly halted the work of a lead pipe thief early today in the new building at Pearl and Redemond streets. The thief evidently was aware that the water had been turned on. When the pipe was cut the water flowed in all directions, causing the thief to flee, leaving a quantity of pipe he had previously cut behind.

'Small Neck Makes the Brain Weaker'

"The main blood supply to the brain is through vessels on either side of the neck, and the smaller the neck, the smaller these vessels, and hence the feebler the brain," declared Dr. Agnes C. Vietor before the Business Women's Club. "And tight collars make small necks," she added.

Garrison and Malone Talk for Democrats

The Democratic State Committee has announced that Secretary of War Garrison and Judge Vahid Alex. Moss, Collector of the port of New York, would speak at tonight's rallies at Springfield and Northampton.

WIFE SWEARS DR. S. T. BEEBE LOVED PATIENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Mary E. Beebe, wife of Dr. Silas T. Beebe, professor in the Cornell University Medical College, pathetically related in the Supreme Court at Long Island City how she had asked her husband why he had not given her an overdose of chloroform rather than let her know his love for her had waned.

Mrs. Beebe, who is suing for a separation, declared that she was ill in bed with a newly born son in her arms when Dr. Beebe told her he loved another woman. This was in March, 1911, she said.

Mrs. Beebe is socially prominent in Flushing. Dr. Beebe is an authority on cancer, author of several medical books. Mrs. Beebe, who is forty-two, testified that in the Spring of 1911 she noticed a "coolness" in her husband's attitude toward her. Then she says she asked Dr. Beebe why he was so indifferent in his treatment of her. She says he replied:

"I'm in love with another woman."

"I asked him if it was a nurse or a patient," continued Mrs. Beebe. "He answered, 'A patient.'"

Daring Rescues at Springfield Fire

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 28.—A score of persons narrowly escaped death in a burning building early this morning at the corner of Main and Emery streets. Fire started in a candy store and the three-story building filled with smoke. Clad in night gowns, blankets or anything they could snatch up, the tenants of the upper floors rushed to the stairways only to find escape in that direction cut off. Patrolmen Cullen and Clifford rescued the women. Firemen carried the remaining tenants, some unconscious, to the street.

Mrs. Catherine O'Brien was taken from a sick bed in an unconscious condition and transferred to the hospital. After Mrs. Mary Ryan had been taken down a ladder she refused to enter the hotel until her husband was rescued. He was finally taken out in a serious condition.

Bodies of American Tourists on Liner

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Two dead bodies and five stowaways were brought to port today on the liner Carmania from Southern European ports. The bodies were those of Admiral Hubert Winslow, who died in Florence, and of Mrs. M. A. Spencer Miller, who died in Naples. D. S. Miller, a son, accompanied the remains of Mrs. Miller. Another son, who disappeared last November, was recently found buried in the potters field in Pike River, Wis.

Policeman Hurt Making Arrest

While arresting Leo Dolliver, twenty-eight, of Hamlin's to live at No. 31 Liverpool street, East Boston, today, on a charge of drunkenness, Patrolman Edward Berry of the Court square station received a kick in the groin. He was able to resume duty after being attended by Dr. Dunn.

CARMAN PAYS WIFE TRIBUTE

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 28.—"Mrs. Carman is a good sport. Any report that we are thinking of a separation is a lie. I do not thing anybody believes she is guilty. I am willing to spend all I can earn to clear her. I am satisfied from what our daughter, Elizabeth, has said that Mrs. Carman did not shoot Mrs. Balley, today declared Dr. Carman.

"I wish somebody would tell me why Lew Smith, the district attorney, felt he had to go out beyond his duty and get a murder indictment when a manslaughter indictment was plenty of ground to decide the issue. I'm satisfied that he knows now anyway, that public sentiment in Nassau County is not behind him.

"Up to the time I went on the witness stand, Lew Smith told me he believed every word I said. Then he changed his mind. He also told me I was the frankest man he ever knew. He asked me, soon after the shooting, if I thought Mrs. Carman did the shooting. I said to him:

"'Lew, do you think I am a damned fool? Do you suppose that if I thought my wife was a cold-blooded murderess I would have gone upstairs and lain down on the bed beside her and gone to sleep?' He said that was a fair answer.

"I was satisfied about it, because right after the shooting I asked little Elizabeth where she herself was when the shot sounded. She said she was in the dining room and ran upstairs to her mama's room and found her mama sitting on the edge of the bed in her nightgown. Then she said Elizabeth was coached for the trial. Well, she was not coached then.

OTHERS HAD DICTAGRAPHS.

"Mrs. Duryea, Mrs. Halley's mother, came over to me just after the jury came in and put her hand on my shoulder and said, 'Doctor, who do you think killed my Lulu?' I told her I'd done my best to find out, and she said she believed me, and asked me to bring Mrs. Carman to Hempstead to see them, and I promised I would as soon as she comes back from the country.

"I've been asked why I didn't say on the stand that Mrs. Carman's use of the dictagraph was not remarkable, because lots of women in Freeport were using them. I do not know that they are in general use in Freeport, though there are a lot of stories around.

"Mrs. Carman is such a good sport that she refuses to tell me who first suggested the dictagraph to her. I don't know who first started up all this trouble between us. We love each other and our child too much to think of separation. All we want now is to be let alone in our home.

"To my mind, the evidence which was presented to the trial jury was conclusive of the guilt of Mrs. Carman," said District Attorney Lewis today. "I felt and still feel that the ends of justice would have been served by her conviction.

"WOULD SPEND ALL."

"It is entirely possible, though not provable, that the county authorities may yet learn the identity of the two women who ran out of the waiting room of Dr. Carman's office just after the shot was fired which killed Mrs. Bailey. In that case it is possible that these two women may tell what they saw in the waiting room, dining room and hall just before the shooting in a way to dispel the mystery. These two women have kept silent so long, however, that neither myself nor the lawyers for the defence believe they will ever come forward."

Mrs. Carman is still suffering from the shock of disappointment following the failure of the jury to acquit her. She may go on her contemplated trip today, however.

"LET IT GO, DOC."

"I am ready to spend all I have and all I can earn to have my wife vindicated. But there are a lot of fellows coming to me and saying 'Oh, let it go, Doc; it's good enough.' "This indictment may run as long as Mrs. Carman lives," District Attorney Smith says. "If the defence seeks to have the indictment quashed, I shall offer them the alternative of a new trial. Certainly there can be no new trial before December."

Land Survivors of Mine Disaster

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The trawler City of London arrived at Fleetwood today with the thirty survivors of the British freight steamer Manchester Commerce, which struck a mine Monday night off the northern coast of Ireland and sunk. Captain Payne and thirteen of his crew were drowned.

REGINA PRECOURT, at top, and her sister, Rose, whose lives have been threatened by strange man at Attleboro.

HUNT MAN FOR DEATH THREAT AT ATTLEBORO

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Oct. 28.—While the Precourt family has taken refuge in the home of neighbors, the police of North Attleboro and a corps of volunteers are searching the woods about the town for a man who has threatened to burn the Precourt home, and to kill the two girls, Rose, twenty, and Regina, fifteen.

An unknown man attacked Regina on Metcalf street, Monday afternoon, slashed her across the wrist with a knife and then fled. The police believe he may be the same man who has threatened to burn the house and kill the two girls.

Deputy Sheriff Reed is heading the posse at work on the case.

The two girls are near a nervous collapse as a result of the threats.

Owl an Attendant at Maplewood Church

An owl of mysterious antecedents and doubtful habits has become a constant attendant of St. Joseph's Church, Maplewood. At every service the bird appears and perches high above the auditorium on a crossbeam. When the choir starts to sing, the owl joins in his own way.

The bird disappears after every service, and search by boys and men has failed to locate his home.

Department Store Bars Onion Breaths

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 28.—Shartenberg & Robinson, one of New Haven's principal department stores, have angered their clerks by posting a notice that employes who come into the store with the odors of onions or garlic on their breaths will be dismissed.

The men are forbidden to use tobacco or liquor even off duty, and all employes must bathe at least once a week, must manicure their nails and keep their shoes shined and their hair combed. Cosmetics and rouge on the faces of the girls are forbidden.

OUCH! LUMBAGO! RUB PAINS FROM SORE, LAME BACK

Rub Backache away with small trial bottle of old, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil."

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on your back and out comes the pain. It is harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and after using it just once you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years. ADVERTISEMENT.

HIGGINSON TO LEAVE MILLION FOR SYMPHONY

Boston music lovers discussed with interest today the announcement of Major Curley that Major Henry L. Higginson will provide for the perpetuation of the Boston Symphony Orchestra by inserting in his will a bequest of more than $1,000,000 as an endowment to that organization.

Major Curley made the announcement in an address at the banquet of the East Boston Catholic Literary Association at the Elks' Home on Sumner street.

A fund of $2,000,000 has been put on deposit at a Boston bank by Thos A. Forsythe in his will, the Major said, to carry on the work of the Forsythe Dental Infirmary.

Major Higginson informed the Major he makes up each year a $40,000 debt for the orchestra, and that he is already expended more than $30,000 on it.

MISS BRITTON BREAKS TROTH TO ROBERTSON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28.—Formal announcement of the breaking off the engagement between Miss Margaret Britton, "the Titian debutante," of a year ago, and Carroll Robertson of New York, was made today by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Britton, parents of the young woman. "Temperamental differences" are ascribed by friends of the couple as the reason for the shattered romance. Miss Britton declines to discuss the matter.

It is whispered in the smart set here that among those not desperately unhappy over the breaking of the engagement are Richard and Stephen Elkins, who were rivals for Miss Britton's hand when Mr. Robertson stepped in and cut them both out.

Miss Britton was formally introduced to Washington society, where her parents have been leaders for years, on December 10, 1913, and her engagement to Mr. Robertson followed early in May of the present year.

She is a strikingly beautiful woman with Titian hair and a commanding figure. She is especially fond of outdoor sports and among her other achievements is awarded credit for inventing the "horsehide."

Maine Man Poisoned, Says Coroner's Jury

SALLOWELL, Me., Oct. 28.—Following a coroner's verdict that James H. Kelso died from strychnine placed in his bottle of medicine by unknown parties, the local authorities began an investigation today.

Mrs. Kelso is firm in the opinion that her husband was murdered. She can ascribe no reason for the act. She has never known her husband to put any drugs in his medicine or try to change the preparation. A canvass of all the drug stores in the town has failed to supply the police with any clew.

Kelso was the aged gatekeeper of the Maine Central Railroad and had been in the habit of keeping his medicine at the gatehouse. An analysis of the medicine showed that six grains of strychnine had been added to the bottle.

POLICE PROBE FIRE IN BACK BAY ART SHOP

Paintings, valued at several thousand dollars, on exhibition in the Vose Art Gallery at No. 286 Boylston street, Back Bay, were damaged by flames, smoke and water at a fire which was discovered in the building early today. The most notable of these works was "The Twenty-third Psalm," by Miss Mary L. Macomber. This picture is valued at almost $5,000.

An investigation was started by the police today. The fire was discovered by John C. Sullivan, the watchman, and Patrolman William Delaney of the Back Bay station. Delaney, knowing that H. H. Kett, an aged man was sleeping in the building, battered down the rear entrance with his club.

Scores Whispering in College Library by Wellesley Girls

The Wellesley crusade against girls who whisper in the library, disturbing the readers, is on again. In the current Wellesley College News this poetic appeal by Rachel Davis appears:

"Oh, Matilda, can't its one—
Did you hear about de feet?
Then whisper, whisper, whisper
For an hour.

Susan looks up, quite effected,
But, until her story ended,
There's no looking kindred coiffs
In the Lois.

Down the aisle to get some books,
Whispered secrets, smiling looks—
Social atmosphere is scattered
All the way.

Shame, cries to conscience,
But you can't abstain;
Think per thousand words a year
Social cost.

It is best on deputation
If a maid on endliner;
It is nothing but a habit,
Is it, pray?

Mother Is Held as Kidnaper of Own Daughter

BROOKFIELD, Oct. 28.—Held as the kidnaper of her own daughter, Mrs. Eva Davis of Brattleboro, Vt., may be released and awarded custody of Lillian Davis, eleven, if the court finds she is able to support the child.

Mrs. Davis had not seen her girl for five years. Left a widow in 1909, she placed Lillian with Mrs. Eugene Watros of Springfield, who later moved to Brookfield with the child.

When charges reached the State Board of Charity that Lillian was not being treated properly, she was taken away from Mrs. Watros and given into the care of Mrs. James Meiva of Sexsville, who put the girl in school. Mrs. Davis is said to have taken Lillian away.

COTTON BRINGS BIG CROWDS TO REGAL COMPANY

"The-Buy-a-Bale-of-Cotton" movement is drawing big crowds in front of the Regal Shoe Company's store on Church Green and Summer streets. Outside the store is a large bale of cotton. With every pair of Regal shoes sold within sixty days, the company promises to buy a pound of cotton at ten cents a pound. The company is also giving away small bales of cotton as souvenirs of the Southern industry.

Manager Buckley wants the people to help themselves to the cotton in front of his store.

"I don't know what they do with it, but they are evidently interested," he said. "This bale in front of our store is gradually diminishing. We get all sorts of questions about the cotton. Women are especially interested in the scheme and always take home with them a good-sized handful of the cotton. It is a drawing card, you can't help but notice."

HEAD COVERED WITH DANDRUFF

In Thick Crust, Hair Thin and Dry, Fell Out By Handfuls, Head Itched and Burned. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Dandruff All Gone.

487 N. Front St., New Bedford, Mass.—"I always had scalp trouble until now. My hair was thin and dry and my head all covered with a thick crust of dandruff which would itch so much that I would scratch until my scalp became all red. My hair fell out by handfuls so fast that I had but a little left, and my head itched and burned.

"I used everything I could hear of but without effect. When by chance I saw the advertisement of the Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper I sent for samples and used them. After finding them so good I bought some more and now my hair is growing steadily and nice and glossy. The dandruff is all gone." (Signed) Miss L. Nolan, Jan. 28, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

Cuticura Soap and Ointment have proved most valuable for the treatment of pimples, blackheads, redness and roughness of the face and hands, dandruff, itching, irritated scalps with dry, thin and falling hair, as well as for irritations and chafings of infancy and for all purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Although Cuticura Soap (25c.) and Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are sold everywhere, a sample of each with 32-p. Skin Book will be sent free upon request. Address "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can easily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active. Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

A New Principle in Complexion Treatment

Most creams are injurious when used habitually. They clog the pores and eventually form a permanent, pimply, stifling film which interferes with eliminative action and makes the skin sickly and pasty. There is one application—mercolized wax—which acts upon an entirely different principle. While perfectly harmless, it has the peculiar property of removing by absorption the dead and half-dead particles of scarf-skin, as well as whatever matter in the pores. Thus it takes away from instead of adding to the complexion, differing in this respect from cosmetics. The result is a perfectly natural and healthy young complexion. Mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store (one ounce is sufficient), is applied at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning.

The correct principle in the treatment of pimples is to lighten the skin, which naturally produces a beautiful, fine, pink and white effection. In this direction no other treatment I ask produces results in so much haste.

Calendar Girl' Has Marriage Annulled

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Marjorie Hamlin Kerting Cunningham had her marriage to Walter D. Cunningham nulled in the Circuit Court. The calendar girl, whose face has graced thousands of packages of up and health food, testified she married Cunningham only twelve days after her divorce from William Kerting, and therefore her second marriage is no marriage. The court agreed with her.

DONS MOURNING, PLANS SHAFT IN HONOR OF DOG

FEATURES OF UNIQUE FUNERAL GIVEN DOG

Body lies in state two days.

Placed on white cushion with pink ribbons, head resting on embroidered pillow.

Bow of white silk ribbon about neck, gold collar resting beside it in wicker basket.

Body taken to temporary grave in limousine. Grave lined with pine boughs and basket containing body placed in brass-handled hardwood, silk-lined casket.

Choice lot in dog cemetery at Dedham bought for final resting place, where monument will be erected.

Mistress murmurs prayers as friends watch hired man complete burial.

"Bessie," a prize winning cocker spaniel owned by Mrs. Lucie E. Liscomb of No. 211 Harvard street, Brookline, rests in a temporary grave in Braintree after the most elaborate funeral ever given a Massachusetts dog. Mrs. Liscomb, heartbroken, wore mourning to the grave.

The funeral director was William, the hired man at Mrs. Jennie G. Faith's farm at Braintree.

"I'll never forget William for his kindness to poor Bessie," sobbed Mrs. Liscomb.

"He put a large bunch of flowers in waiting that he had paid for himself. He was so glad to be with me unable to leave me, and left the room when I first brought Bessie on my arrival in the limousine. You know I made a heart-breaking trip alone with Bessie's body.

Although it was generally known in the Brookline neighborhood that "Bessie" was gravely ill, few were aware she had died. So keen was Mrs. Liscomb's grief that she could endure the presence of but a few intimate friends in the apartment while "Bessie" lay in state.

Prosperity Spreads With Increasing Business

FORBES TALKS OF OPENING OF STOCK EXCHANGE

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The tide of overseas trade has turned in favor of the United States. It will flow very strongly by and by.

Our floating debt to Europe, now probably under $200,000,000, will be wiped out before many weeks pass; and then we shall pile up a surplus wherewith to meet any sales of securities that may be made when our Stock Exchange opens.

WHEN WILL THE STOCK EXCHANGE REOPEN?

That question does not concern "Wall Street" only. It concerns every employer and every employe in the land. Until the nation's financial machinery is again set in full motion we cannot hope to see anything resembling normal industrial or commercial activity. The Stock Exchange is not simply a roulette wheel. It is, in reality, the central market of the country, the concentration of all other markets, the court of final resort in appraising the value of everything.

The sooner the Exchange can be opened WITH SAFETY the better for us all.

But many things must first be attended to before all danger of demoralization can be removed. My investigations beget the conviction that the Stock Exchange cannot resume unfettered trading before the first half of January.

What are the main obstacles and problems to be overcome before the opening gong can be sounded? By bringing them to notice and urging that they be diligently considered and remedied, the duration of the present dead lock may be shortened.

* * *

First—and most important—we must strain every nerve to bring about an enormous trade balance in our favor. We must sell every dollar's worth we can to Europeans—AND INSIST UPON CASH, NOT LONG-DATE PAYMENT. Gratifying progress is already being made in this direction, and very important developments regarding the sale of cotton to England may be announced forthwith. This newspaper's daily chronicle of merchandise exports and "war orders" placed here is inspiriting. And only a beginning has been made.

By December 31 our credit balance should be large enough to enable us to take care of whatever securities foreign holders care to throw over at sacrifice prices.

Were the New York Exchange to resume business before January the December 31 quotations would have to be used by savings banks, insurance companies and other concerns as the basis for appraising their investments, and the chances are that the showing would be—well, not calculated to foster confidence. By leaving the Exchange closed until the turn of the year, the June 30 or the July 30 quotations can be used. This is an important, not to say a dominant, consideration.

New York cannot resume before London—and may find it expedient to await post-opening developments there. For be it remembered that London will not accept selling orders from Germany or Austria, whereas we cannot shut out any foreign security holder. New York, unaided, would thus have to "hold the bag," as Wall Street phrases it, for these stricken nations. Moreover, Britain is a creditor nation. We are debtors.

Nor can the stock market resume until a real call money market has been established. At present the so-called call money market is frozen.

Before New Year the new Federal Reserve banks will be working, and this will tend to facilitate the restoration of a fluid and ample collateral loan market.

By waiting a while foreign exchange rates will have time to be fully readjusted. To settle for European liquidation on a $5 sterling basis would be ruinous.

All uncompleted transactions between Europe and New York must be settled before international trading can be safely resumed. This awaits a more normal money market here and also calls for certain rather delicate handling of certificates.

To my mind the Stock Exchange governors are not exercising consummate judgment in dealing with the position here. Unless they do something effective the outside trading cannot but get beyond their control. Two courses are open. The exchange should either:

Permit trading at reasonable concessions from the July 30 quotations; or

Sanction strictly cash trading at whatever prices sellers and buyers agree upon.

I am told that the Exchange authorities have sent for representative brokers and sounded them on the first proposition. The under-standing is that bankers would agree not to call loans wholesale the moment the July 30 prices were disturbed, but would simply ask for enough additional margin to offset the reduction in quotations. Any broker whose customers could not respond to such a call and who would be unable to furnish the small amount of extra collateral cannot hope to escape embarrassment later on. To do a little housecleaning before the Exchange throws its doors wide open might not be inadvisable.

Let everything be put in order to start the new year right.

Optimistics

More ships are coming under the American flag and will add to this country's foreign commerce. New Yorkers are forming a company to buy vessels seized as war prizes by the British and which will soon be sold at auction.

Big harvest reports are coming in. Bradstreet's reports an increase of 2,906,000 bushels of visible wheat east of the Rocky Mountains and an increase of 138,000 east of the big divide.

* * *

All difficulties obstructing the reopening of the New York Cotton Exchange have been adjusted except a few minor details. When New York reopens Liverpool and New Orleans will resume business too.

The price of pork products should descend. Hog receipts were the largest in eight at Chicago on Saturday last months.

When Federal Reserve Banks open for business on November 16 $400,000,000 will be released for circulation. This will make money easier and help every line of trade.

Sterling exchange has declined below the gold export point, which is 4.90. This indicates that the gold movement to Canada for Bank of England benefit is about over.

* * *

International trade figures spell prosperity for the United States. On Monday last exports of general merchandise from New York totalled $6,183,512, an increase of $3,468,926 compared with the previous Saturday. Exports exceeded Imports by $2,664,316.

GERMANY IS EXPECTED TO BUY COTTON

Since the British government will not seize cotton shipped from this country to European belligerents, it is expected Germany will be a heavy buyer of this staple. It is believed she will take at least 1,000,000 bales of this year's crop. Austria is expected to take about 400,000 bales.

Neither country has any export trade at present nor is likely to have, since England maintains control of the seas, but both of the former countries have a large domestic demand to American cotton interests. It will be a helpful market factor. In fact the cotton situation is improving. The Federal Reserve Board is expected to approve of the $135,000,000 syndicate to help tide over producers and banks which have loaned money on the product.

ENORMOUS EXPORT TRADE.

Food, clothing and war supplies bought by Europe in this country within three weeks total $200,000,000, it is estimated. Most of this business would not have been obtained except for the war. It is understood France has spent $30,000,000 here for food and munitions within three months. War trade is likely to increase from now on at a rapid rate, as belligerents are getting out of supplies and the United States has become the great purveyor. On Monday exports from New York, the country's greatest port, exceeded imports by $3,664,-314. Most of the shipments were to England, France and Denmark, but there were some to South America.

MORE DEMAND FOR COPPER.

More demand for copper is of significance. Although it is selling at eleven and one-half cents a pound, a very low price, the market is firmer, and if the metal continues in as much request as at present an advance may be looked for. For October up to Saturday last export shipments totalled 48,527,000 pounds, which was a big gain over September. More encouragement is afforded by the fact that domestic demand is increasing.

DECLINE IN EXCHANGE.

The decline in foreign exchange rates indicates what a tremendous amount of American products are now being bought by European. Chicago's foreign business in foodstuffs for nine weeks is said to have aggregated $114,527,000 bushels, an increase of 21,000,000, compared with a like period last year.

CHEERFUL TRADE NOTES.

It is expected the Interstate Commerce Commission will render a decision next month on the application of Eastern railroads for an increase in freight rates. If granted it will be favorable it will boom business.

There is more export demand for wire products.

It is expected British banking interests may invest $100,00,000 in buying cotton in this country.

One European country now at war has contributed 600,000 bushels of oats and has instructed a New York bank to pay for the shipment.

EMBROIDERY PATTERNS ARE BIG DELIGHT

Embroidery needles are busy today in every little hamlet, town and city all over the six New England States, and women and girls are beginning their Christmas embroidery work.

This is due, in large part, to the interest aroused by the splendid embroidery pattern outfits women readers of the AMERICAN may obtain.

Every outfit consists of over 200 up-to-date hot iron transfer patterns, an all-wood embroidery hoop of special design and ten skeins of silk and floss in assorted colors.

The throngs of women who have secured the outfits in the last two days have been ASTONISHED at the remarkable value of the set.

Every woman knows the price of a single good pattern when purchased in the ordinary way, and the comments on the big assortment now being distributed by the AMERICAN have, in every instance, been so favorable that tremendous demand is certain.

To secure this assortment of patterns with the hoop and floss, it is only necessary to clip six coupons of consecutive dates from the evening AMERICAN and present or send same, with the small cash amount of 48 cents, to the AMERICAN Pattern Department, No. 5 Winthrop square, Boston, Mass., or at your local newsdealers, no matter in what city or town you may live.

Anyone can begin clipping the coupons today or any day while the offer lasts. The coupon will be found every day on the Magazine Page. Any woman who is even slightly interested in embroidery work will do well to call at her local newsdealer's and ask to be shown the AMERICAN'S pattern outfit.

Begin clipping the daily coupons and take advantage of this splendid offer.

Red Cross Insignia Forbidden as Ad

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Persons using Red Cross insignia for advertising purposes were reminded today that there has been a Federal statute against it for nine years. Morris W. Freeman, a Bayside street tailor, was arraigned in the United States Court where, if Assistant District Attorney H. A. Content's contention is correct, Freeman is liable to a fine of $50, which will go to the Red Cross Society, or imprisonment for one year. Other prosecutions are in prospect.

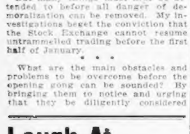
Laugh At Dyspepsia

By Simply Using a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet After Any Meal You Want to Eat.

It sounds almost ridiculous to think of eating a rich, hearty meal of food and discomfort afterwards, doesn't it? Well, try this simple remedy and demonstrate its truth. You know that 72 men (a jury) decide the laws of our land. Not only have 72 men O. K'd Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, but hundreds of thousands as well.



"What do I care about this meal? A little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet will digest it easily for me."

Just think! One ingredient contained in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 times its weight in food.

Doesn't this tell you that such aid to your body means relieving your distress from food?

What thousands are daily doing you can surely do. Every condition of stomach and digestive trouble has been relieved by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They have been tested and tried for years. They are this nation's greatest dyspepsia remedy. They are sold wherever drugs are sold. Surely this manner of proof is all you need to know what course to pursue.

If any man can prepare a better remedy than Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets he can make millions of dollars. Is there a better one?

Why not use this hint to awaken your common sense and make you go to your druggist today and buy a box. To obtain a valuable free trial of these tablets please address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., and a small sample package will be mailed free.

Newspaper Ad Best Medium, Says McNeil

"The best medium for advertising is the newspapers," declared Harold McNeil of Boston in speaking before the retail division of the Pilgrim Publicity Association.

"Such advertising as can be given through the mail, by catalogs and by programs, etc., is well enough in its way, but it is secondary and not the best. About 60 per cent. of our advertising goes to the newspapers.

"The importance of advertising cannot be over-estimated. The only way to make a big successful business is to advertise systematically. Haphazard advertising is wasteful and unproductive of results. I believe that about 3 per cent. of the gross sales of a business is a proper investment in the advertising field.

"I hardly need assert that the merchandise should back up the advertising. To be a successful advertiser you must be a believer in your product. The public must be told the truth. If the public is deceived in the quality of the goods, then it loses confidence and it is not long before the business is on the downward path. Fraudulent advertising is probably the worst curse in the advertising business. Truth is the cornerstone upon which a genuine success is founded in advertising as in other business."

Name Appraisers on T. D. Whitney Estate

Judge Grant in the Probate Court has appointed Edmund A. Whitman, Daniel T. O'Connell and F. R. Carnegie Steele appraisers of the estate of T. D. Whitney, dry goods merchant, whose will is being contested by his widow. The estate is roughly estimated at $500,000. Three women involved in the contest are Mrs. Carrie W. Myricks of the Hotel Puritan, a sister; Mrs. Amy H. Barker, a beneficiary, and his widow, who lived apart from him for many years.

Less Than a Cent

You may know a woman who has a reputation for making delicious cake, biscuits, etc.,—who seems to hit it right every time.

You may also know a woman, who, no matter how painstaking, can't seem to get the knack of successful baking.

Both use the same butter, same eggs, same flour and sugar. What is the difference?

Very likely it's all in the baking powder. Undoubtedly the woman with the knack uses Royal Baking Powder, and the unsuccessful woman uses an alum baking powder thinking it cheaper.

Yet the difference in the cost of a whole large cake is less than a cent.

It is economy to use

Smoke tobacco, not tabasco!

You listen to this:

There isn't anything the matter with your smokappetite. You try Prince Albert in a jimmy pipe or rolling a few makin's cigarettes before you do the next thing. And you'll wise up to what the doctor ordered! For P. A. in a cigarette or a pipe is a wonder—so bully in flavor and fragrance. And it's easy to roll, because it "stays put."

Unlike any other tobacco, Prince Albert can't bite your tongue and can't parch your throat. That's cut out by a patented process. No other tobacco can be made like the national joy smoke

Everywhere you travel throughout the nation you'll find more men smoking pipes than ever before. Since P. A. hit the turf, less than five years ago, three men now smoke a pipe where one smoked before. What's the answer?

Just you get your tidy red tin, fire up a few loads of "the national joy smoke," and you'll wise up so quickly you'll think you've been napping for the last few years. And that's no idle dream!

Now do that little thing and get going in the right direction!

Just buy P. A. like you never had smoked any other brand. The dealer's wise. Say "P. A. for mine." In the tapey red bags 5c; tidy red tins 10c; also in handsome pound and half-pound humidors. You'll get acquainted right well on the second fire-up. Oh?

FRENCH MOVE ON METZ; PREPARE FOR ALSACE BATTLE

of Soissons have been engaging in an artillery duel with the Germans, in which they have destroyed several of the German batteries.

ALSACE BATTLE NEAR.

The London Times received a despatch from Berne today stating that German forces in Alsace have just been strongly reinforced and the French holding positions before them are constructing intrenchments to resist the attack which is expected immediately.

Paris reports today that three German aeroplanes reconnoitred the region of Senlis, Department of Oise, and then crossed the allies' lines toward Paris. They were prevented from reaching the region of the capital, however, through the vigilance of the aerial guard.

The capture of 10,000 Russians by the Austrians is officially announced by Vienna. The announcement adds that great quantities of munitions of war were also taken.

The location of the action is not given, but an earlier announcement from Vienna said: "In the fighting before Ivagorod we have up to the present time captured 8,000 prisoners and nineteen machine guns." It is thought that the later announcements refers to this engagement.

In sharp contrast to the Vienna news is the Petrograd statement, also official, that the Russians are defeating the Austrians in Galicia and taking many prisoners and guns. "The Austrians are becoming exhausted," says the Petrograd dispatch. Pursuit of the German force in Poland is also claimed by the Russian War Office.

BOER REBELS BEATEN.

News of the new revolt of the Boers in South Africa is followed today by the Cape Town announcement that the rebels at Kahamas, near the border of German West Africa, have been defeated by the British troops that were sent against them. A Durban, Natal, dispatch says that mutiny broke out among the war prisoners' camp at Pietermaritzburg, where several thousand Germans and Austrians have been interned. The outbreak was quelled and the prisoners who escaped were recaptured.

The new revolt in the South African Union is led by General De Wet and is more extended and important than was at first thought. General De Wet gained fame as a soldier in the Boer war and is a man of great influence. His disaffection is the hardest blow that has been struck at British rule in South Africa since the days of the Boer war, according to London dispatches, which say further that the uprising of General De Wet is the cause for real alarm in military circles.

BLOW AT PORTUGAL.

Earl Kitchener, it is said, has advised the dispatch of a formidable expedition to crush this revolt before it assumes more serious proportions.

General Louis Botha, premier of the South African Union and leader of the British forces, is rushing to the front, it is reported, to crush the rebels under De Wet.

German invasion of Angola, the Portuguese colony in South Africa, is confirmed, according to a Lisbon dispatch today. While no official statement has yet been made, it is reported that an expeditionary naval force will be dispatched at once. The further report is current at Lisbon that the republic plans to send 10,000 Portuguese soldiers to aid the British and the allies.

While the Germans have apparently struck the first blow against Portugal in raiding Angola, West Africa, this move may lead to the new republic's supplying her British allies with a larger number of soldiers than the treaty of Anglo-Portuguese alliance calls for.

This number was 10,000. Portugal has over 350,000 men of military age. Her navy is small. It will probably be used to convey the expedition to hold Angola. This possession is in lower Guinea, and has few white residents. The total population is about 484,800.

CLIFF ATTACKS POLICE LISTS IN SOMERVILLE

Mayor Zebedee E. Cliff of Somerville today wrote a strong letter to the Civil Service Commission in which he made these charges:

That the Commission had submitted to him three different lists of policemen eligible for appointment to police sergeancies.

That these lists "varied considerably" both as to names and ratings.

That many changes had been made from the original marking of the papers in the civil service examination last Summer of thirty-three patrolmen.

The Mayor wrote that any appointments he made from the "final" list of eligibles would be criticized and would not tend to promote discipline in the police department. The letter caused a sensation in Somerville City Hall circles.

The Mayor put up to the Commission the question of throwing out the old papers altogether, and called on the Commission to give a new examination.

Samuel W. McCall, Republican candidate for Governor, and Grafton D. Cushing, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, addressed a rally in Austin Hall under the auspices of the Harvard Republican Club today.

Sidelights and Personalities of the Great War

TIM HEALY, the Irish leader, pressed to explain by the examiners, when the Mauretania docked at Liverpool, indignantly replied he was Irish.

FORMER KING MANUEL of Portugal, following acceptance of his services by King George, has now offered to serve with the Portuguese contingent if that country joins the allies.

THE KAISER, under the new agreement between Germany and Austria, undertakes the leadership of the united armies.

CAPTAIN JOHN JACOB ASTOR, First Life Guards, son of William Waldorf Astor, was wounded in a battle in France.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL PRINCE FREDERIC of Saxe-Meiningen was killed in battle near Montigney.

LIFT NEUTRALITY LID.

Harvard's neutrality will be thrown to the winds tomorrow evening when the undergraduates will talk on war at an open meeting of the Harvard Speakers' Club.

EMPEROR FRANZ JOSEF'S barber, a man named Stossal, when called to the front, asked the Emperor, "What His Majesty would do without him?" The Emperor, according to Vienna dispatches, replied: "Why, shave myself, of course."

WELL-TO-DO SUFFER.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The Hamburger Fremdenblatt is receiving daily 10,000 applications for war relief from moderately well-to-do folk hit by the war and who do not come under the notice of the committee for the very poor.

GERMANS SEQUESTRATED.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—Eighteen more Austro-German firms have been sequestrated by the French government.

BELGIANS ASK $48,000,000.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 28.—Dispatches from Cologne say fifty Antwerp firms have demanded $46,000,000 indemnity from England because retiring British troops before the fall of Antwerp destroyed goods belonging to the firms.

New Tuesday, November 3, election day, is a legal holiday in thirty-eight States and Territories including New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, New Hampshire and Rhode Island. Massachusetts is among thirteen States and Territories where election day is not a legal holiday by legislative enactment, but the first Tuesday in November has always been observed as a holiday in this State in banking circles by common consent.

Haverhill Man Is Killed by Train

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 28.—John McDonald, No. 484 Water street, Haverhill, Mass., slipped beneath the wheels of a passenger train in the New York Central Railroad Station here last night and was crushed to death. His identity was established by a note book he carried.

Official War Reports.

FRENCH.

French Coat of Arms.

During the day yesterday the attacks of the Germans throughout the region between Nieuport and Arras became much less violent.

Our positions have been maintained generally and we have continued to make progress to the north and south of Ypres. We have accomplished some progress also between Cambrin, southwest of La Bassee and Arras.

Stronger confirmation is being received from day to day that the Germans have suffered considerable losses in dead, wounded and prisoners.

In the region to the north of the right bank of the River Aisne the Germans have attempted a violent offensive movement at night. In the region of Craonne, on the heights of the road Des Dames, they have been repulsed. In the Woevre region our troops have have continued their advance in the forest between Apremont and St. Mihiel, and likewise in the forests of Le Prêtre.

Russia.—To the south of Warsaw the battle extends from Ilava to the Island of Kenika, in the Vistula, along a front of 100 kilometres (sixty-two miles). In the region at the northeast of Rawa the Russians have inflicted heavy losses upon the Germans. Bloody combats have taken place in the forests between Kosienice and Rudom. In Galicia the Russians are making progress to the south of Jaroslaw. They surrounded in the Podhuj Valley the Thirty-eighth Division of the Honved, as well as Landwehr troops, whom they completely decimated, taking twenty guns and much war material. In East Prussia the partial counter offensive movements of the Germans have been checked.

RUSSIAN.

Russian Coat of Arms.

Desperate attempts of the retreating German army to again take the offensive, after having been driven back fifty-five miles from Warsaw, have been repulsed.

The retreating Germans have made several attempts to reform their lines in an effort to check the rout, but in each case they have been driven back by the fierce bayonet charge of the Russians.

In Galicia we have taken many Austrian prisoners. The fighting there is slackening as the Austrians have exhausted themselves. Many guns also have been captured by our troops.

Przemysl is still being shelled by our troops.

The attempt of the Austrians to envelope the left wing of General Brussiloff's army has failed. On Friday twelve miles south of Sambor the Russian troops surrounded in a deep valley the Thirty-eighth division of the Honveds, firing upon them from surrounding heights. Only a few of the enemy escaped. The Russians captured twenty cannon provision trains.

The Austrian's defeats are all the more significant inasmuch as they were brought about by bold and successful attacks of the cavalry and the valiant pursuit of the infantry. These regiments were formed only since the outbreak of the war.

GERMAN.

German Coat of Arms.

Severe losses have been sustained by the enemy in the fighting in Belgium. The fighting in that region is marked by extreme violence. The German soldiers are acquitting themselves with conspicuous bravery, upholding all the noble traditions of the army of the Fatherland.

Estimate Rheims Loss at $200,000,000

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The correspondent of the Morning Post, who has just returned from Rheims, telegraphs from Paris that the insurance companies estimate the damage to Rheims at $200,000,000. At the Mayor's office, it is stated, the correspondent says, that this estimate will be exceeded when sundry damage to private property is added.

"Over 1,200 civilians were killed in the streets and houses during the month's bombardment," the correspondent says. "About one-fourth of all the buildings were destroyed. The most severe damage was done in the best portion of the city, where the finest and most historic buildings are located.

"The cathedral is a ruin. It is still crumbling and big lumps of stone continually fall from the arches."

Gen. Franklyn, Aide to Kitchener, Dead

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Lieutenant-General Sir William Edmund Franklyn, who commanded the Third Division of Kitchener's new army, died suddenly here. Lieutenant-General Franklyn, prior to assuming command in Kitchener's army, was military secretary for war, which post he had held since 1911.

Aid Pledged in Dorchester Boom

Five "Boom Dorchester" projects are being advocated today following a mass meeting in Bloomfield Hall, under the auspices of the Dorchester Board of Trade. They are:

Construction of a $750,000 bridge across the Neponset river.

Lighting of the north and south shore drives by the proposed Old Colony boulevard.

Development of the waterfront and the Neponset river.

Paving of Dorchester avenue from the South Station to the Milton line.

Completion of a subway to Dorchester.

Bankers, brokers, builders, merchants, professional men and business men generally attended the meeting.

Lime and Tuberculosis

DR. ROBERTS BARTHOLOW, former professor in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, and widely famed as a medical writer, says in the eighth edition of his authoritative Materia Medica (1895), on pages 215 and 216:

"Clinical experience has shown that it (referring to a calcium salt) possesses the ill-defined property known as alterative, removes certain toxic or morbific materials and secures their secretion by the organs of elimination.

"The testimony which has lately been published in respect to its curative powers in consumption is certainly very striking."

Of course, Dr. Bartholow does not refer to testimony published regarding results obtained through the use of Eckman's Alterative, since the medical profession makes it a rule never publicly to recommend proprietary remedies. However, there is a large accumulation of such testimony, covering many cases of consumption and allied throat and bronchial affections which seem to have yielded completely to this remedy.

Doubtless this success is due largely to the fact that in Eckman's Alterative a calcium (lime) salt is so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person, thus overcoming the objection often raised to the use of calcium.

In any event, its record is such as to warrant a trial—unless other treatment is producing desired results—and since it contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, it is safe to take. Your druggist has it or will get it, or you can order direct.

HAVE COLOR IN YOUR CHEEKS

Be Better Looking — Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

If you want a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—but have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Take one or two at night and note the pleasing results.

Durability—good looks—weather and fire-resisting qualities all go together in

Penco TRADE MARK 1869

Metal Shingles

We have yet to hear a single complaint about the wear these shingles give. We don't expect to, either—for Penco Shingles are made of Hampton Sheets. This means iron. And iron (not steel) won't rust. So much for wear.

Penco Shingles are first coated with pure tin—then painted an attractive slate gray. Or you can get them heavily galvanized. The illustration shown above gives you a pretty good idea of the handsome appearance of Penco Shingles.

A CLAMP-JOINT construction makes Penco Shingles water, and weather-proof, and an absolute protection against fire.

More reasons why Penco Shingles are best for bomes, schools, churches or any building—their light weight requires less expensive wall and roof construction; nails are not exposed; anyone can lay them.

Two sizes—10 x 14 and 14 x 20 inches.

Loxon Tile

Its fine appearance and extreme durability especially recommend LOXON TILE wherever a simple, serviceable and sanitary roofing is desired.

Comes only in galvanized sheets —6 to 12-foot lengths. Takes a fine copper finish.

Won't rust—because made of the specially prepared Hampton Sheets.

FEDERAL LEAGUE MAGNATES OUT TO LAND WALTER JOHNSON FOR NEXT YEAR AT ANY PRICE

WELSH DECLARED WINNER OVER MATTY BALDWIN AFTER A HARD BATTLE

"FLASH" AT FINISH WON FOR WELSH

By RINGSIDE.

Freddy Welsh is still the lightweight champion of the well-known universe. Great Britain's noble boxing fighter is very fortunate to have a clear claim on the title in his boxing class today, as he was obliged to fight at his very best in order to get a hair-line decision over Matty Baldwin in their twelve-round bout at the Atlas A. A. last night.

Welsh shaded Baldwin, but if Referee Billy Roche was not a generous hearted individual he would probably have called the bout a draw. Such a verdict would have made a big hit with the 6,000 persons who witnessed the battle, as Baldwin carried the Welshman along at a merry clip and had the best of the going in five rounds. Welsh had six frames in his favor, while the other chapter was even.

Welsh outboxed Baldwin, but the latter had the best of the argument when it came to infighting. Matty had a margin in his favor for the first ten rounds, but the title holder opened up in the last two sessions and fought at a terrific pace and crashed off the honors. It was this "finish" which gave Welsh the decision.

CHAMPION WITHOUT A PUNCH.

The champion won, but he failed to startle by his work within the hemp ropes. He is a wonderful defensive boxer and is blessed with a pleasing left jab, but he cannot be classed with such men as Battling Nelson and Ad Wolgast.

The champion's punch is of the clubby variety. He scores frequently with his left, but his blows are but little damage. He has not a knockout smash, as most title-holders are supposed to be blessed with.

The "fans" realized that Welsh was more of a boxer than a fighter and expected that he would do a great deal of fancy footwork, but he surprised them and stood flat-footed most of the time and relied upon a snappy left-hand punch to hold Baldwin at bay.

The fight itself was a very satisfactory one from the viewpoint of the "fans." There was enough action crowded into the twelve rounds to keep the "fans" interested. Baldwin made a fine exhibition. When he first entered the ring, Welsh was a 10 to 3 and 10 to 2 favorite, with few takers.

Referee Roche would have been forced to have called a draw decision at the very last if it had not been for Welsh's slashing work in the last two frames. The bell had sounded for the start of the eleventh session Welsh realized that he would have to do some lively scoring if he was to grab off the decision.

BOUT GREENED FAST.

The Welshman began to fight like a real champion. He mixed in and out like a panther and rocked Baldwin with well directed left and right-hand punches. Matty fought back gamely, but Welsh was a little too speedy for him and caused the Charlestown favorite to miss many of his punches.

The men did not waste any time in getting underway in the first round. Baldwin rushed at Welsh, and there was an exchange of punches right off the bat. Baldwin started a infighting, while he also managed to send several left jabs to their mark. He had the best of the argument in this chapter, and it was evident that the title-holder and his work cut out for him.

Welsh came back strong in the second, third and fourth frames and grabbed off the honors. He outboxed Baldwin, and his speed enabled him to avoid a number of Matty's wild swings.

Freddy resorted to but little footwork. He stood up straight, and either tried to beat Baldwin to the punch or attempted to block his blows.

Baldwin began to come in for his own in the fifth stanza again and had a little something on the champion in this round. The sixth session was even, but Baldwin forged to the front in the seventh frame.

The honors were in favor of Welsh in the eighth round, but in the next two sessions Baldwin did some grand work and had the best of the fighting.

Matty showed at his best in the ninth frame. He kept at close quarters most of the time and outfought Welsh. When came the last two sessions and Welsh's garrison finish, which won the good favor of the referee.

Dan McDonald defeated George Rohmen in the semifinal bout of eight rounds. Howard McHale and Tommy Doris fought a six-round draw, while Lave Cross stopped Jack Donnelly in five sessions.

WELSH AND BALDWIN BOUT BLOW BY BLOW

By RINGSIDE.

The men were called to the centre of the ring by Referee Bill Roche and it was announced that they would box under straight rules. The bell then sounded and the battle began.

First Round.

Baldwin sent a solid right-hand smash to the champion's body, and Welsh came back with a left jab to the title holder's head. Baldwin sent Welsh's head back with two right jabs. Matty missed a right-hand swing. The champion scored with a left jab. Welsh repeated with a left and right-hand punch to Baldwin's head.

Baldwin rushed.

Second Round.

Baldwin rushed and the men clinched. Welsh scored two straight left jabs. Baldwin forced the fighting and sent left and right-hand jabs to the mark. He then crossed his right to Welsh's head. Baldwin's fellow rooters gave him two mighty left jabs, which sent back the champion's body a bit.

The two then clinched, and after the break Baldwin again scored with his favorite left jab. Baldwin rushed in close and landed a left at the title holder's body with solid left and right-hand punches. Welsh jabbed Baldwin's head and the latter seemed to flow freely from the Bunker Hill boy's nose.

Welsh's round.

Third Round.

Welsh refused to retreat and sent the "flash" into an upheaval when he repeatedly shot left and right-hand punches to Baldwin's head. Matty rushed at the champion and Welsh's head back with two straight left jabs and followed with a right-hand blow to the head. Welsh rushed with a clinch and landed a left-hand "wallop" on Ho then jabbed Baldwin four times without re turn.

Matty rushed at the champion and swung with a fine right-hand swing to the body, but missed. Welsh jabbed with his left. Baldwin sent a left and right blow to Welsh's body as the bell rang.

Welsh's round.

Fourth Round.

Welsh blocked a left jab and then clinched. Welsh then landed a left-hand punch to Baldwin's body, and Baldwin responded with a left-hand punch to the champion's left jaw. Baldwin rushed in both with a left-hand punch to the head and landing left and right-hand smashes to the body. Welsh rushed at close quarters and caught the champion while he was off his balance and sent a left and right-hand punch to the stomach. Matty again rushed at Welsh and landed left and right-hand punches to the champion's body. Welsh jabbed with his left.

Fifth Round.

This was the last blow landed in the fifth up to this round. Baldwin jabbed with his left and followed with a sweet right-hand blow to the body. He then battered Welsh around the ribbers with solid right-hand punches.

Welsh scored a left to the jaw. Baldwin came back with a right-hand smash to the champion's head. Freddy again jabbed lightly with his left. But Matty responded in fighting some more and scored with left and right-hand wallops to the body.

Baldwin's round.

Sixth Round.

Baldwin sent the right-hand punch to the body. Welsh responded with a left jab to the head and a solid right-hand punch to the body. Matty missed a wild right-hand swing, and slipped, but only went to his knees, and was on his feet in a second.

He rushed to close quarters where he roughed things with Welsh and had the best of the going. He then sent left and right-hand punches to Freddy's head and body. Welsh sent Matty's head back with two great left-hand blows at the bell sounded.

Round even.

Seventh Round.

Baldwin rushed and landed a left jab to Welsh's head and while the champion was off his balance sent a hard right to the jaw. Welsh responded and jabbed with his left. Baldwin rushed to force the fighting and piled up a big assortment of left and right-hand punches to Welsh's stomach.

Baldwin's round.

Eighth Round.

Baldwin counted with a right to the jaw and then locked Welsh's left to the champion's jaw. Welsh jabbed with his left and then stood in the middle of the ring waiting to be engaged in a mix-up. Baldwin rushed and mixed with Welsh in the fight and sent left-hand punches to Baldwin's body. Baldwin replied with a left jab to the champion's head. The Charlestown boy scored two hard rights to the champion's body. Welsh sent a left-hand blow to the stomach.

Welsh's round.

Ninth Round.

Welsh sent with his left, and Baldwin ran at close range and jarred the title holder with left and right-hand punches to the body. Welsh sent left and right-hand smashes to the body. Welsh sent his left and Baldwin missed a wild right-hand swing.

Baldwin's round.

Tenth Round.

Baldwin scored with a left jab. Welsh then landed two left-hand punches and clinched. The champion blocked a left-hand punch. Baldwin then sent two left-hand blows to the mark, but was forced to take a left jab in return.

Welsh rushed and Baldwin countered with a right-hand punch to the head. Welsh rushed before they stopped back. Welsh sent a hard left to Baldwin's head and followed it with a right hand and to the same spot. Matty missed a right-hand punch.

He then sent Welsh's head back with three left jabs.

Baldwin's round.

Eleventh Round.

Welsh rushed he would have to do some hard boxing if he was to get the decision, and after feinting with his left sent his right to the body. He then crossed his right to the stomach. Baldwin fought back gamely and sent a left hook to Welsh's head.

Matty missed a right-hand swing, when the title holder stepped out cleverly. Baldwin sent left and right blow to the title holder's body. Welsh rushed and sent a left hook to Baldwin's stomach.

Baldwin came back with a light right-hand punch to the face. He tried the same blow again, but missed by almost a foot. Welsh jabbed with his left and scored his right to Matty's kidneys.

Welsh's round.

Twelfth Round.

Welsh gave a great exhibition of fighting in this stanza and swept Baldwin off his feet by his great work. Welsh sent his left and followed it with a right-hand blow to the jaw. He then sent his left to the head and right to the stomach. Baldwin fought back gamely and landed a right to the head. Welsh sent his right to the body. He tried to score with a right-hand swing to the head, but Baldwin ducked. Welsh then jabbed his left to the head.

Welsh jabbed with his left. He then sent one to toe with Baldwin in the centre of the ring, and there was a mix-up. Welsh sent his left with the lessons in favor of the champion. Baldwin landed a right to the body. Welsh sent his left to the head, following it with a right-hand swing to the body. Referee Roche then raised Welsh's right hand as a token of victory.

Welsh's round and fight.

EBBETS SHOWS DIFFERENCE IN BASEBALL COST

Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Brooklyn National League club, comparing traveling expenses of former years with those now in effect, says:

"In the old days (twenty or thirty years ago) I could take my club on a visit to the four cities comprising the National League and get them home again on an outlay of $1,500 in traveling and hotel bills. (This, of course, does not include salaries).

"We carried eighteen in a party, traveled at a special rate of one and one-half cents per mile over the 2,000 miles and usually got three deadhead tickets out of eighteen. The party would consist of six pitchers, two catchers, five infielders, three outfielders, the manager and one extra man.

"Our car fare amounted to approximately $600, with $200 additional for sleepers and about $700 for hotel bills for a sixteen-day trip. The limit in the old days was $2.50 per day in hotels.

"Now take the conditions today. Our team carries nine pitchers, three catchers, five infielders, six outfielders, a manager and assistant manager, two trainers and two extra men. This figures twenty-nine.

"We pay two cents a mile for every mile we cover and get no more deadhead tickets. This brings the travel bill alone up to $1,500, the amount of the entire bill in the old days. Sleeping accommodations add $200 to the expense, and hotel bills at $4 a day instead of $2.50 add $1,323 more.

"All told the item of travel and meals totals $2,750 for a single Western trip at the present time."

Roslindale Seeks Game.

The Roslindale football team would like to arrange a game with some fast eleven for Saturday at home. Also have open dates in November. Roslindale has won all four games played, without being scored on. W. E. Stewart, manager, No. 22 Corinth st., Roslindale.

AUSTRALIAN RING SHOW NETS WAR FUND $50,000

THE Australian must have his portion of boxing, war or no war, hard times or plenty. According to a recent letter from Reginald L. Baker, premier promoter of the little continent, the only thing in Australia that hasn't suffered because of the hard times brought on by the European war is the boxing game.

While he has cut the scale of prices at all of his four stadiums, the sport continues to attract such attention as to make it a highly profitable investment.

BUT a short time back Baker set out to raise $25,000 to turn over to the war fund. As showing the feeling in Australia, the whole-day affair that he called the "Patriotic Carnival" netted over twice that sum, and in consequence the promoter turned over to the fund the splendid sum of $50,000.

Entertainment was held in the sports grounds in the afternoon and at the Sydney Stadium in the evening, every athelete of any prominence in Australia taking part. The Australian papers speak of it as one of the greatest displays ever given in a sporting way.

WRITING of the boxing game especially, Mr. Baker has this to say of the present situation: "We all feared that when the war broke out that boxing would be seriously affected, if not wiped out altogether for the time being at least.

"But it appears that, hard times and all, the boxing fan must have his meed of it. As long as we can give them good contests, there will be no dropping off in the attendance. We are keeping the prices as low as we possibly can, and as a result our houses are larger than ever.

JOE SHUGRUE, the New York lightweight, and his stable mate, Bobby Moore, along with Manager Tommy Lee, are returning to America on the same boat that carries this latter, having already made up their minds to this.

"I am in hopes of inducing Eddie McGoorty to remain here and renew his battles with Jeff Smith, the New Jersey middleweight, who is on his way back. (Mr. Baker did not succeed in holding McGoorty, however, as the Wisconsin man sailed on the same boat.)

"SHUGRUE made good here and proved himself the right sort of a boy both in and out of the ring. Moore became a great favorite with the fans, and Lee was well liked.

"Shugrue and Moore would get a reception here if they decide to return. The fans here like the earnest fellow who bores all the time. Both of these boxers had a successful season here, and I am sure are going to give you good reports of this country."

IN his letter Baker speaks of a match the following week between John Griffiths of Akron, O., and Herb McCoy, a good Australian lightweight, but no news of the result of this has yet reached this country.

Griffith is regarded as one of the fastest and best of the native Americans.

Gibbons Has Easy Time with Maxwell

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Mike Gibbons of St. Paul took the measure of Billy Maxwell of Philadelphia in the Broadway Sporting Club.

Gibbons had the Philadelphia boxer's number, for he stretched him on the canvas several times during the ten-round encounter, but was unable to finish him.

PEEVISH, CONSTIPATED CHILDREN LOVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Harmless "fruit laxative" cleanses stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomach ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in just a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless fruit laxative; they love its delicious taste and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt. —ADVERTISEMENT.

FINAL SHIFTS FOR BIG GAME WITH MICHIGAN MADE BY THE HARVARD COACHES

HARVARD READY FOR YOSTMEN

By "AL."

A long scrimmage with the second team is on the lists for the Harvard varsity football men today, as the final hard preparation for the big Michigan game of Saturday. All the regulars and the first string subs will be seen through the afternoon at hard work. The drill will be lightened tomorrow, while the Friday workout will consist merely of signal practice.

The last shift now seems to have been made in the team, with Hardwick back on his old stamping ground at right end, a change made necessary by the injury to Soucy Saturday. Hardwick, however, will still be used a lot, both as end in carrying the ball, as the end around is a favorite play with Coach Haughton, and the powerful Yankee is too good a man to have around without working him a lot.

The change gives Francke, who has been improving a lot lately, his chance to new on the regular job at fullback. If he keeps on at the rate he has been going for the week just ended, there's no doubt that with Bradlee and Mahan as side partners, he will be part of just about the best backfield in the gridiron sport this season.

LONG BLACKBOARD TALK.

The new regular is a mighty fine punter, and with the aid of a deck of coaches, who have been drilling him daily for quite a time, has mastered the fine points of the booting game.

His kicks last Saturday were all well placed, when off quickly and had good distance.

As was the case yesterday, a long blackboard talk will be a principal part of the program this afternoon. The same line of plays that must be worked out from now on has been given to the squad and an hour each day will be spent by the coaches lecturing the players on just what's what in the new strategy.

Soucy, the injured end, was at the field yesterday on crutches, but the doctor and Hardwick in the wing is considered a practical admission that there is no hope of bringing the converted centre around in time to use this season.

C. Coolidge seems to have landed an end berth for himself, like after the Michigan game at all events, and his playing out on the extreme has been very satisfying to the instructors.

Just at present he is the best man on the team at receiving the forward pass, with Bradlee generally acting as the sharp shooter. Logan, however, is adept at the basketball wrinkle, and after he gets round into good shape again will take over his old job.

WOLVERINES DUE TOMORROW.

The second team and the subs had a spirited scrimmage yesterday afternoon, but nothing developed except the fastest man on the eleven, will be given a rest while the almost regulars will have the task of fighting the varsity.

It is now admitted that Pennock will not be used in the Michigan game, unless for a few moments. He is being handled carefully, with only a little more work each day and his bad knee seems to be on the mend very nicely.

The lineup yesterday, which is the same as started the scrimmage today, was:

Coolidge, l.e.; Parsons, l.t.; Weston, l.g.; Bullock, c.; Withington, r.g.; Trumbull, r.t.; Hardwick, r.e.; Logan, q.b.; Mahan, l.h.b.; Bradlee, r.h.b.; Francke, f.b.

The Michigan team will arrive in Boston tomorrow and will be offered the use of the Stadium for practice Friday and Saturday morning, if Coach Will chooses it. They will put up at the Woodland Park Hotel.

YOST AND HIS SQUAD OF MICHIGAN STARS START FOR EAST TODAY

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 28.—Coach Yost's eleven, which meets Harvard Saturday, starts East today and the squad includes the following men:

Captain Raynsford, Watson, McHale, Cochran, Reimann, Benton, Staatz, Trghlli, Maulbetsch, Splawn, Lyons, Dunne, James, Rehor, Quail, Norton, Huebel, Zieger, Bastian, Bushell, Catlett, Roerm, Finkbeiner and Milford.

The team will arrive at Auburndale, where they will train, some time tomorrow afternoon.

The students' special train leaves tomorrow, arriving for the Michigan mass meeting Friday night. There will be two cars from Chicago, ten from Ann Arbor and one from Detroit.

Twenty scrubs and the varsity band will go on the rooters' special.

Local athletic officials have sold 1,500 tickets for the game to Michigan students and alumni, and the Wolverines will be well supported in the coming intersectional clash.

Kiel Sonder Boat Races Called Off

At the third general meeting of the year of the Chester Yacht Club at the Algonquin Club the nominating committee was confirmed by the members present.

This committee is composed of Charles P. Curtis, Nathan Anthony, C. H. W. Foster, Paul D. Rust and Sabin P. Sanger.

Henry Tirrard, secretary of the club, reported the receipt of a letter from the KaiserlicherYacht Club of Kiel, Ger., calling off the sonder races that were scheduled for next June at Kiel, owing to the unsettled conditions in Europe.

Out of Baseball Forever, Declares Frank Chance

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—"Never again will I take an active part in baseball," said Frank Chance, former manager of the Yankees, when he returned here.

"The Federal League made good and will continue to make good," he continued. "There are no quitters among the Federal owners. They had the organized baseball forces on the run all Summer. I was on the inside, and I know.

"The Players' Fraternity has caused the stand-pat magnates no end of worry. In trying to fleck the Feds and the Fraternity organized baseball lost quite a bank roll.

"My principal reason for quitting the Yankees was that I wanted to buy new ball players, and the Cub backers could not see their way clear to pay the freight.

10,000 Turn Out to Welcome Gowdy

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 28.—Heading a parade composed of 10,000 people, embracing all classes of citizenship, and riding in an automobile with Governor Cox and Mayor Karb of Columbus, Hank Gowdy, baseballist hero, arrived at the historic Ohio Capitol.

Only a portion of the big crowd from the procession and streets could get into the State House rotunda, where Gowdy formally was welcomed home. He could say nothing more than "I thank you" when presented with a beautiful silver cup from the Chamber of Commerce and a diamond fob ornament by hundreds of individual admirers.

St. Petersburg Camp for Phillies' Team

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.—All arrangements have been made by the Phillies to train next spring at St. Petersburg, Fla., a thriving burg just across the bay from Tampa. The chance for exhibition games with fast will very good, as several teams will camp nearby.

The Highlanders will do their training not far from St. Petersburg and the Chicago Cubs will be found at Tampa.

Nationals Again Win Over All Americans

LEWISTON, Idaho, Oct. 28.—The all-star Nationals defeated the Americans here, 4 to 1, errors contributing to all scores. Otherwise the game was a pitchers' battle, in which Alexander had the better of it.

The Nationals made six hits and four errors, and the Americans three hits and four errors. The batteries were Alexander and Killifer, James and McAvoy.

GILMAN COLLAMORE, Harvard '93, is the Henry James of football. Writing of the Dartmouth-Princeton game he says:

"Harding's three minutes dash and a phantasmagoria of forward passes for the most part abortive, there was little to arouse hoi polloi from chilled slumber under lowering skies at the Palmer Memorial Stadium on Saturday; little by way of corollary, anomalous though it may seem, to attract and open the eyes of cognoscenti. For cognoscenti and hoi polloi are made alike, though notwithstanding that Monsieur Coe looks down from lowering heights of stadium ruinparte upon Herr von B. P. The latter glories in blood running action, the former in neatness of execution combined with keenness of mind, producing a satisfying sense of proportion. Each sought in vain for the things that whet his appetite. Even the lover of the pseudo spectacular, the forward pass, provocative must have dwelled the days when Willie Keeler fouled a million balls and finally gained his end, a base on balls, so frequent in the finale were the vagrant trajectories into space so seldom humanly receptive. The write in his own generation was bored, perhaps, by the lack of a cleverly planned, carefully prepared and skillfully executed attack. Neither eleven showed a tentative genius in this respect, but on the defence both Princeton and Dartmouth were much further advanced.

"MR. COLLAMORE doubtless means that the game did not satisfy either the Roughnecks or the Highbrows, that the forward passes were for the most part rotten, that the attack was a lush-league but that the defence was all to the merry.

"If those institutions that refuse to number their football players' person on the ground that numbers are apt to unduly "advertise" the players their stand is not well taken.

"With scores of alert reporters attending the game there is no chance but that the player who makes the "sensational" run, or kicks a goal from midfield will be well advertised. The player will be in the headlines nine times out of ten and his play will be described in detail.

"If the football authorities desire that their players be not "advertised" they must formulate some plan to keep football news out of the newspapers. But it is good betting nothing of that kind will be attempted. However much the coaches and athletic directors may publicly decry the newspapers they really thrive on the "stuff."

Keep football out of the newspapers and the games wouldn't "draw" much better than an interclass tennis match.

IF is the public that supports football. The public likes the numbering of players. It enables everybody to tell who makes the runs, the tackles, the interfering, and it shows, too, who makes the muffs and fumbles and the missed tackles and so on.

The numbering of players is bound to be adopted by every college. Only two or three of the "highbrow" institutions are holding out. They will be in line before long.

IT has come to be the thing now for football officials to seek out the coaches of the opposing teams before a game begins and have explained to them any plays the coaches intend to "spring" on the other fellows that may be new or are of a nature that might cause the officials to hesitate as to whether or not they were against the rules.

By having the plays explained in advance and shown that they are not infractions of the rules, the officials are prepared to convince the opponents that the plays are perfectly proper.

FOOTBALL is taken very seriously by everyone connected with it—coaches, players and writers—especially writers. It is pretty hard to get any humor out of the game. Anyone who starts a laugh when football is under discussion is frowned upon. He is de trop, as it were.

Nevertheless, there are laughs to be had.

FRANK CAVANAUGH, coach of the Dartmouth team, relates that just before a game not long ago, he was asked by one of the officials if he intended to go on the sidelines. He replied that of course he wouldn't do so unless the opposing coach used the sidelines, and then he didn't know as he would exercise the privilege anyway.

The official sought out the opposing coach and asked the same question. The opposing coach, who takes himself very seriously, replied with great heat: "There's to be no sideline work in this game."

Cavanaugh got a good laugh out of the incident.

Kid Williams Wins Over Dutch Brandt

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Kid Williams, the world's bantamweight champion, beat Dutch Brandt here at the Broadway A. C. in a corking good bout.

Brandt put up a game battle, but was no match for the title-holder, who won almost every round after the opening session.

In the last two sessions Brandt stood toe to toe with the Baltimore tiger and although receiving a volley of blows to the body, refused to yield ground.

De Oro in Cue Match for Lambert Trophy

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Alfred de Oro, holder of the three cushion billiard championship, will start a final attempt to get a permanent possession of the Lambert trophy. He meets George Moore in the first match at Doyle's Academy tonight and Thursday and Friday night fifty points being played each evening.

Money No Object to Feds to Land Walter Johnson

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 28.—The directors of St. Louis Federal League team today gave Manager Fielder Jones instructions to go to Coffeyville, Kas., and sign Walter Johnson, the famous Washington pitcher. They placed no limit on the bankroll. Jones was simply instructed to "get Johnson at any cost."

Jones declared that the big pitcher will jump if he is offered enough money. He told the directors it would take a small fortune to get Griffith's star. Their answer was "go and get him."

Eddie Ainsmith and Clyde Milan, according to Jones, will go with the St. Louis Federals next season if he is successful in landing Johnson.

Two More Harvard Class Races Today

In the opening races in the Harvard rowing regatta on the Charles the Fifth Eliot eight and the Third crew, the coaches intend to "spring" on the other fellows that may be new or are of a nature that might cause the officials to hesitate as to whether or not they were against the rules.

By having the plays explained in advance and shown that they are not infractions of the rules, the officials are prepared to convince the opponents that the plays are perfectly proper.

Arlington Runners Beat Harvard

The Arlington High cross-country team, minus their veteran captain, Harold Kimball, easily defeated the Harvard freshmen, twenty-three to forty-five over the four-mile course in Belmont. The run was a practice event in preparation for the Cornell meet.

Of the first ten men to finish, six were Arlington boys. Clinton Peabody, Arlington, won, followed by the Crimson captain and another '91 man, Hatfield, Cameron, Robinson and Collins, all of Arlington High finished next in the given order.

Penn State Captain Hurt in Celebration

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 28.—Captain E. W. Tobin of State College football eleven, and G. J. Saurbof of Haddon Heights, N. J., president of the sophomore class, who were burned by the explosion of five barrels of gasolene that was poured over a gigantic pile of firewood to celebrate the return of the team from Cambridge, are resting easily today, although it is feared both will lose their eyesight.

American League Signs New Umpire

Richard Nallin, the former International League umpire, will officiate in the American League next season. Ban Johnson has signed up Nallin, who has made a fine record in the International, where he has served for the past four years. President Barrow recommended the new arbiter to Johnson.

CHAUNCY FIVE TO ROLL MINUS WRECKING CREW

WITH neither Paul Poehler nor Archie Walsh in its lineup tonight, the famous Chauncy "wrecking crew" is facing the probable loss of first place in the City Bowling League.

Walsh and Poehler are on a barnstorming tour of Maine, and as they are booked to show their wares in Augusta this evening and at Waterville tomorrow night, they will not be back in Boston until Friday at the very earliest.

Walsh and Poehler are the two leading pinmen of the City League, having averages of 107 and 109 respectively. Without them Chauncy is weakened considerably. Their appearance would be especially welcomed tonight, as Boylston is pressing Chauncy for the leadership, being only one point in the rear.

MEANWHILE Bill Beatty is wrestling with the very difficult problem of trying to select two good bowlers to fill the gap left open by his stars, or rather help to fill it. Beatty will probably take one of the places himself, but he has not made up his mind as to who the other will be. Bill is a capable "pinch hitter" and can reel off three good strings when he is called upon to do so.

CHAUNCY takes on Murray. Murray is the lowest average team in the league, but you can never tell what the South End collection will do to the leaders in their present weakened condition.

Chauncy is fortunate in having Boylston meet Adams Square, the team which battered the high ambitions of the leaders last week. These two quintets are very evenly matched and the points are apt to swing either way.

The match between Carruth and Casino at the latter lanes is of less importance than the other two, though it is possible for either of them to make trouble for the leaders through the acquisition of four points.

NEWTOWNE and Arlington Boat Club, which have been getting all the best of it in the matter of "breaks" so far this season, are looked to improve their positions in the Newton League bowling alleys this evening. These two teams hold the championship and runner-up flags, but have lost more points than they have won. Maguire, the leader, tackles a fairly strong team in Hunnewell.

* * *

THE rooters from the various councils of the K. of C. will gather at the New Boston lanes this evening, when the two teams will engage in a battle to try to break the existing triple in the 5 o'clock place.

* * *

FRED WILLIAMS has taken over the management of the new alleys at the corner of Summer and Kingston streets. Fred has a host of friends who wish him success on his latest venture.

* * *

MANAGER YTILL of the Webster alleys, Roxbury, is offering a gold watch to the bowler who rolls the highest six non-consecutive strings during the month of October. Manager Yttill of the Adams Square City League team is leading with 736. Porter of the Webster's is next with 723, and McLoughlin is third with 713.

THE LOST KALE.

If John D. Rockefeller had a dime
And lost it through a knothole in the sidewalk,
Would you, kind reader, waste your precious time
To help him search or listen to him squawk?

You would not pause to sympathize —nay, nay!
You would not stop to offer him your help.
More likely you would laugh and go your way—
And so it is when baseball magnates yelp.

Perchance, after a few more financial bumps, the magnates will awaken to the fact that the despised fan likes to be treated somewhat after the fashion of a human being.

In other words, baseball magnates are beginning to realize that they do not hold their jobs by Divine right.

It is said that the minor leagues are the backbone of baseball. It is also said that baseball has just received a swift kick in the spine.

Joe Cantillon is in Washington looking for ball players. Evidently for Athletics' cheerers, who are almost old enough to play in Minneapolis.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Athletes of West Point and Annapolis will be eligible to compete in amateur track and field sports without being registered with the A. A. SELECT RIDERS FOR TITLE BIKE RACES AT ARENA

The complete program for the seven days of bike racing at the Boston Arena has just been announced by Managers McLean and Butler.

A well balanced card of preliminary events to the six-day race will be run off on the new saucer next Saturday night.

These will include the indoor motor paced and sprint championships, a one-mile professional best two in three heats between Al Goullet, "Reggie" McNamara, Eve Lawson, Freddy Hill and Eddie Root, an unlimited Australian pursuit race with Jimmy Moran, Clarence Carman, "Barney" Ryan and Drobach competing, and a five-mile open professional, in which 15 to 25 of the best riders in the world will take part.

The motor paced title will be decided in two heats to five miles and one of ten. Clarence Lawrence will meet in the first heat and Wiley and Walthour in the second. The winners of each preliminary will clash in a ten-mile final.

The six-day practice will begin at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. The following teams will start: Goullet-Hill, Moran—McNamara, Carman—Wiley Walthour - Root, Mitten - Anderson, Lawrence-Magin, Ryan-Thomas, Lawson-Drobach, Kopsky-Hansen, Madonna-Rudi-Russo and Pierey-Logan.

This list includes every available long-distance star in the world, and it seems more than likely that the standing Western record for six-day racing will be eclipsed when the riders and their taut a week from next Saturday evening.

2 More Rich Stakes Captured by Cox

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 28. — Walter Cox, the New England driver, kept up his winning career at the Great Western Circuit meeting, landing two of the three races carded.

The feature event was the $2,000 stake for 2:12 trotters, which Cox won with the Chicago mare Fair Virginia, after five heats. The blind stallion, Dingoli, was an easy winner of the 2:14 pace, his initial victory of the season.

Luncheon and Calling Frocks

(REPUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH HARPER'S BAZAR, THE OLDEST AND GREATEST WOMAN'S MAGAZINE)

WHEN Cheruit wishes a long coat, she makes a very long model, extending almost to the bottom of the full little skirt which it covers. From the new beige colored whipline she has developed an unusually good-looking garment, the front and back panel laid in unstitched inch-wide pleats. The belt, marking the low waistline, is of sable—the fur belts being a fancy with this couturiere—and harmonize with the close-fitting collar and cuffs.

THIS blue and magenta colored checked velvet frock has the characteristic Cheruit features in the straight, long waist and skirt hung in a sloping line from the front to the back. The deep flat yoke, slightly curved over the bust, is another new note. Though not new, the quaint little lace collar and lace cuffs, also the bow of dark blue grosgrain ribbon in the back, are typical of Cheruit's creations, and add much to the effect.

OSWALD was grumbling at her.

"I do think you might have put a little more warmth into your reception of my friend. You never shook hands with him or pressed him to dine. I hope he didn't notice it. He's the finest man I know. It will surprise you to know that he rose from the ranks—and without any influence behind him, mind you. He was a lance corporal in the Twenty-third when I was stationed at Aden. I was hurt when up-country and my horse foundered.

"He brought me back on his, walking beside me every blessed step of the way and giving me every drop of water we had between us. When we got inside Aden he just dropped down almost dead with thirst and exhaustion. And now my wife can't even be civil to him."

"You never told me this before," said Leslie faintly.

"I'm sorry my manner was cold," she said to Oswald. "I have a frightful headache. It's this awful glare. I shall go back now—alone. Please don't interrupt your sightseeing. I would rather be alone."

Issa at once enlisted the services of a quick-witted Arab boy who had been following the party, and ordered him to escort the Frankish lady to her hotel. "Don't forget we are going to Jericho this afternoon," Freddie called after her.

"I shan't go," she called in response. "I shall lie down this afternoon."

She hurried through the teeming squalid alleys of Jerusalem, her guide striding before her and elbowing every passer-by with a laughable air of authority and importance. She cast haggard glances from side to side, fearful lest she might stumble against Victor. She reached the hotel in safety.

THE WORLD HAD CHANGED FOR HER FOREVER.

Only three hours had elapsed since she had left that room, as free from care as the brown urchins playing and screaming beneath her window. And now the world had changed for her forever—and she felt herself to be a thing of shame in every man's eye she encountered in the streets.

She threw herself full length upon the couch and, closing her eyes, tried to think calmly. Her alarm, she told herself, was exaggerated. The situation, though painful and humiliating, presented no danger.

In the eyes of the law she had been Victor's wife. Then she turned sick and faint; she clutched at the draperies. A horrible doubt had assailed her. Suppose Rose Darley had been wrong?—what should she, an inexperienced girl, know about the law? With a faint laugh Leslie banished the doubt. Of course, Rose had been right—she had never doubted it all these years.

No, the horror of the situation consisted in the simultaneous appearance of the two men, both of whom believed her to be his wife, to both of whom she had believed herself to be truly and lawfully wedded. Victor perhaps did not know that the false statement of her age had voided their marriage—as, of course, it had!

With unspeakable relief she had realized there by the fountain that he had not told Oswald that he knew her; but this might be only a respite. Every one of the few sentences he had uttered at their brief interview was graven on her memory, and she weighed them all carefully.

He evinced a wish to avoid meeting her, it was true; he spoke of going away soon, but in his desire for a private chat with Oswald she thought she detected a design hostile to herself. Or, supposing, on the other hand, that he should go away in silence, leaving her to face the situation alone, she not knowing whether or when he would reappear, what he expected of her, what he thought of her.

It would be like living on the crater of a volcano. She must see him, have speech with him alone; above all, before she met him again in the presence of Oswald. She could never endure to meet the two men again with this sword suspended above her head. To meet him—to brave his reproaches—would be terrible, but meet him she must.

She remembered that Victor was going alone to Bethlehem that afternoon. She would go there to meet him before her own party returned. She rang for the chambermaid and told her to order a carriage for Bethlehem to be got ready at once.

CHAPTER X.

LESLIE drove out of the Jaffa gate, past the ugly railway station, past the time-worn citadel misnamed the Tower of David, toward the hill country of Judea. It seemed to her the saddest of journeys that she should go up to Bethlehem on such an errand.

She selected, to the indignation and derision of the men, a damsel of fourteen, who spoke a little French—taught her, as she proudly explained, by the Franciscan Sisters. The girl's simple explanations, Leslie felt, would jar on her less than the studied fluency of the trained guides.

The child took her by the hand with an engaging friendliness and hurried her across the market place. Before them loomed a black, forbidding pile like a fortress, entered by a very narrow door. This was the Church of the Nativity reared by Romana 1,600 years ago on the very spot, as they believed, where the three Wise Men found the Child they sought.

The Romance of Queen Canaace

Ruler of Ancient Meroe, in Ethiopia, and First Crowned Head to Embrace Christianity

Here are seen the ruins of one of the main streets of Meroe.

A jar which was found near the ruins of the throne of the Queen of Meroe.

The bronze head of a sceptre unearthed from the ruins of the Ethiopian capital.

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

WHENEVER a woman appears conspicuously upon the political stage history inevitably assumes some of the qualities of a novel, and begins to be read with a more eager interest. It lends itself to the purposes of romance, and the names of its heroines are favorites in the literature and poetry of subsequent centuries. Witness Cleopatra, Zenobia, the Queen of Sheba, Isabella of Castile, Catharine of Russia, Mary, Queen of Scots, Joan of Arc, etc.

When considerable mystery attaches to the character and achievements of these historical women, the charm becomes all the greater. In this sense Queen Candace of Ethiopia, the treasures and wonders of whose capital at Meroe on the Nile have recently been unearthed, takes rank near the top of the list.

Meroe had a long history, extending over a period of a thousand years, from the sixth or seventh century B. C. until the third century A. D., when it was destroyed in war. It was also, as the photographs here reproduced prove, filled at all times with beautiful and interesting works of art. But for every ten persons who have heard or read the name of Meroe, there are at least a hundred to whom that of Queen Candace is familiar. In other words, she occupies a greater place in the sun of history than does her capital—but, with all that, she is hardly more than a name.

One of her greatest titles to fame is the fact that she was the first reigning sovereign to be converted to Christianity, and the relative familiarity of her name to our modern ears arises from the other fact that she is mentioned in the New Testament, in the 8th chapter of "The Acts," where is told the story of the conversion of her ambassador, "a chief eunuch," who was the care-taker of all her treasure at Meroe, by Philip the Deacon, one of the primitive Christian ministers. She had sent her treasurer to Jerusalem to learn about the Jews and their religion. He traveled in a chariot, and Philip met him reading the prophet Isaiah as he rode along.

Some idea of the splendor of Queen Candace's court, and of the value of the treasures committed to the chief eunuch's care, may be obtained from the statement of Professor Garstang, the archaeologist, that the articles of gold discovered at Meroe exceed in value any discovery of the kind since Schliemann found King Priam's treasures at Troy, and those buried in the royal tombs at Mycenae.

Among the most singular things at Meroe are the remains of a primitive temple designed for lion worship. Five desert adjacent to the site of the city appears to have always been a favorite haunt of the "king of beasts," and many centuries before the time of Queen Candace the royal nature of the lion was effectively recognized by the erection of this temple in his honor.

The art objects discovered at Meroe include specimens of the work inspired by various civilizations—primitive Ethiopian, Greek and Roman. A gigantic bronze head found near the river is believed to represent the Roman general Germanicus.

Like the ancient Egyptians, the rulers of Meroe had considerable knowledge of astronomy, and among the buildings whose remains have been uncovered is an "observatory," in which was found a stone containing engraved records of the measurement of angles. Whatever the ultimate purpose of such observations may have been, it is impossible to deny that they had a scientific basis, for careful measurement is the soul of science in all ages.

His Own Physician

Larry had caught a severe chill which necessitated medical attendance. A milk diet was ordered—"nothing but light food for a few days." At the end of the second day Larry refused "to be starved to death iny longir wid thim sups o' milky stuff." "Well, Jewel, what can Oi do?" asked his wife. "The dochtor says there's fur the good o' yer hilth." "Ach, had seran to him fur a naygur!" cried Larry. "What's the use o' bein' an invalid if Oi can't git something exthry, let alone feedin' me loike a chile? Oi'll sit up and go to wurrk in the marnin', and thin Oi'll hev to be fed loike a man!"

Their Married Life

Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.

HELEN had listened to Warren and Bob discuss the war until it seemed as though she couldn't stand it another minute. They were over at Louise's for dinner, the first dinner, as Louise explained proudly, that she had given in her new home. Louise was adorable, thought Helen warmly as she watched her happy face, and everything had gone beautifully. The little dinner had been admirably cooked and served, and Warren was in a splendid humor.

"Oh, Bob," said Louise finally after the salad had been brought in, "I wish you and Warren would talk about something different for a change. I feel as though I were having the European war served up in everything I have eaten so far. Let's have the salad and dessert flavored with something not so strong."

Bob laughed agreeably. "Thought we'd give you ladies a chance to talk finery."

"Dig you could talk on that subject, too," put in Louise, "your tastes are decided enough. What do you think, Helen? He even likes to put in a word about the most trivial things I buy these days. I hope Warren isn't as particular with you."

Helen laughed, and looked at Warren inquiringly. "Are you, dear?" she queried, "I don't remember about any small things that you criticise."

"Speaking of clothes, Helen, I think the fur on your suit is simply stunning. I don't remember that there was any fur about it when you bought it. Did you have it put on?"

Helen flushed uncomfortably. Warren had not noticed the fur as yet, or if he had he had not said anything about it, and she had not told him about it for he would consider it unnecessary extravagance. Louise and Bob in a minute that something was wrong, but before she could say anything to cover up her remark Helen said casually:

"I had the fur put on it, dear. I thought I could use my lynx set, but they told me downtown that black fur was not pretty on brown. I'm glad you like it."

Warren paused over his coffee. "Easy to see that I don't insist upon seeing the small things," he said with unexpected good humor. He had noticed the fur on Helen's suit, but, because it happened to please him, he had said nothing about it. Helen gave a little relieved sigh and, as they rose from the table, squeezed Louise's arm happily. The men went on into the living-room, and Louise drew Helen into her room for a moment.

"Helen, how do you like our maid?" she asked anxiously. "Bob insists that she is too independent. He hasn't liked her from the first and wants me to get another girl. You know how hard that is, and this one has splendid references."

"Why, I didn't notice anything about her; she waited very well. What doesn't Bob like?"

"He thinks she tries to boss me, although I assure him that she doesn't. The whole thing is, Helen, Delia doesn't like Bob, and he finds fault with her constantly, although she is perfectly respectful."

Warren was lounging in an easy chair smoking a cigar, and Bob was looking through some snapshots that he had taken from the drawer in the centre-table.

"Louise," said Helen, suddenly remembering something, "I have a house-warming gift for you—how stupid of me to forget," and she disappeared suddenly into the hall, coming out a second later with a small brown bag in her hand.

"A present for me," said Louise, holding out her hand; "how exciting!"

"For you and Bob. Don't get too excited—it's just a bag of salt!"

"Yes, she would bring it," scoffed Warren. "Salt—symbolical, I call it."

Helen checked an angry retort. "It's an old German custom," she explained. "A bag of salt as a house-warming gift will insure the couple health and happiness."

"I think it's a sweet idea," said Louise warmly. Of course you couldn't expect Warren to approve of anything so romantic—he's too old and wordly. Are you going to call it silly, too, Bob?"

"Not if it's going to bring us happiness," he said softly, taking the bag from Louise and holding her hand for a moment before he released it. Bob still respected Louise's feelings, thought Helen gladly, in spite of the family habit of bossing that both men had inherited from their father.

"Little things like this," said Louise firmly, "are what make life worth living. You may call them superstitions if you like; I call them breathing spaces on a hard, rough road. Of course, after all, it's all a matter of opinion, and as it's always hard to change a man's opinion, I never try!"

Helen smiled tremulously and Warren said nothing more. The evening passed pleasantly enough and it wasn't until later when Helen was preparing for bed that Warren, having a last smoke before retiring, said anything more was said on the subject.

"I tell you," he said, throwing away his cigar and coming into the room suddenly, "Louise is a very clever woman. I never knew until tonight that she had so much brains."

"She gave you to understand that she has a mind of her own," said Helen, who was hanging her suit away in the wardrobe at the time, so that Warren did not understand what she said.

"What's that?" And then as Helen did not answer, "I tell you, a man likes to hear a woman express her ideas on a subject sometimes; that is, if she has anything to say."

"Most women would have a great deal to say if they were given an opportunity a little oftener," returned Helen, who was thoroughly roused. And for once Warren was too surprised to answer.

WHAT TO DO FOR ITCHING SKINS

Eczema, ringworm and other itching, burning skin troubles are so easily made worse by improper treatment that one has to be very careful. There is one method, however, that you need not hesitate to use, even on a baby's tender skin, that is the resinol treatment. Resinol is the prescription of a Baltimore doctor, put up in the form of resinol ointment and resinol soap. This proved so remarkably successful that thousands of other physicians have been prescribing it constantly for 19 years.

Resinol stops itching instantly, and almost always heals the eruption quickly and at little cost. Resinol ointment and resinol soap can be bought at any druggist's. For free samples write to Resinol, Dept. 44-R, Baltimore, Md.

Ends Dry, Hoarse or Painful Coughs Quickly

A Simple, Home-Made Remedy, Inexpensive but Unequaled.

The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant tasting, home-made cough syrup has caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It gives almost instant relief and will usually overcome the average cough in 24 hours.

Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any drug store, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This makes a full pint—a family supply—of the most effective cough remedy you can buy for only 54 cents or less. You couldn't buy as much ready-made cough syrup for $2.50. Easily prepared and never spoils. Full directions with Pinex.

The promptness, certainty and ease with which this Pinex Syrup overcomes a bad cough, chest or throat cold is truly remarkable. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the painful cough in a hurry. With a persistent loose cough it stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the annoying hacking.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in creosote and is famous the world over for its splendid effect in bronchitis, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

To avoid disappointment in making this, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

NEW TENOR WINS ACCLAIM AT THE BOSTON

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

That amusing Boston Theatre Opera disclosed last night a heroic tenor of the first rank in the person of Castellano, a young Italian, who was making his debut. The opera was "Othello," and Castellano, in physique and appearance, better realizes the Moor of Venice than any tenor I have ever seen in the character except Slezak, the giant Bohemian.

His voice is a truly magnificent organ, like a trumpet in the upper register and agreeable throughout its range. Last night he was somewhat nervous, because his tones show all through the first act, and his knees could be plainly seen knocking together in his real right. His nervousness probably caused him to sing off pitch a good deal. But as the evening progressed he warmed up and acquired confidence, and in the great scene of the second act he acquitted himself magnificently. His action, too, was intelligent and unforced.

Gallati, the baritone, was an Iago who was almost equally noteworthy. This man has also a superb vocal organ, which he is using with more ability every day. His diction and action during the singing of the terrible Credo was extremely effective. Kristoff made a pretty and sweetly singing Desdemona.

Aside from a few incidentals such as the recent act scenery, which suggests Indianapolis rather than Cyprus, and the costumes of the chorus, which serve for many operas and periods, the piece was well produced. The important fact is that a magnificent dramatic tenor and a splendid baritone, supported by a good orchestra and the chorus, were singing "Otello" in a memorable manner, and the public of Boston continued to be indifferent to the claim of opera, unsupported by social frivolity. It is too sad.

SHOW GIRLS PUT ON TIGHTS, OBEY MAYOR'S ORDER

Obeying Mayor Curley's censorship order the girls of the "Passing Show of 1914," at the Shubert last night wore tights in the acts in which they have hitherto appeared in bare legs. The runway erected from the back of the theatre over the orchestra seats to the stage was not ordered done by the Mayor after he was explained it was built as high as the stage and not on the floor level.

GIRLS TOSS FOOTBALLS.

However, the girls were not allowed to walk up the runway in the scene where they toss miniature footballs into the audience. Instead they stayed on the front of the stage and tossed the balls back and forth with those in the front rows.

Manager E. D. Smith of the Shubert said:

"I am surprised and indignant that the representatives of the Watch and Ward Society found it necessary to lodge complaints against this performance with the Mayor, and that acting upon these complaints the Mayor was moved to order certain changes in costuming the girls. I want it distinctly understood that such publicity as has followed these complaints is entirely looked for or desired by the Shuberts or by myself.

"MAYOR MISLED."

"I am not sure, but I am afraid the Mayor was misled in the complaints by the Watch and Ward Society. Mention was made of productions in which members of completely dazzled with the audience and the Mayor expressed his disapproval of this practice. This indictment does not lie against the 'Passing Show of 1914.' There is no chorus through the ankles. There has been shown in which the chorus girl, dressed through the waist, is in the production the only practice that even remotely resembles this is the use of the runway."

MOTOR NOTES.

By J. C. KERRISON.

The Massachusetts Automobile Operators' Association will hold a smoke talk and entertainment at its club quarters, 362 Washington street, tomorrow evening. The committee in charge has made extensive arrangements so that members may thoroughly enjoy themselves on this—the first of the Fall meetings.

Frank Martin of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation is spending a few days in this city. He says there is nothing but increased business in the industry and prophecies that the coming year will be a wonderful one from a business standpoint.

It is understood that the King Motor Car Company will soon announce an eight-cylinder car, which will not be shown to the public before the motor shows in January. The company will retain its present four-cylinder model.

Although the Dodge people as yet have made no announcement regarding their new car, it is understood that the Wheelbase will be the same, and that the body will be pure streamline. The car will be electrically lighted.

The Arrest of Katherine Driscoll Should Be Investigated, Fully and IMPARTIALLY

The resolutions passed by the mass meeting in South Boston, called to protest against the arrest of Katherine Driscoll for loitering, raised a serious question of fact, to which the authority having a final decision in the matter ought to give grave consideration.

It cannot be denied that it is bad policy to start young people out in life with the great handicap of a criminal record. Even a little breach in the pride and self-respect of a young man or woman breaks down one of the defences which nature raises up for the protection of their moral character. It also deprives them of many an opportunity for advancement, and thus discourages them and puts them in the frame of mind which makes it easier for temptation to prevail over their better impulses.

It also cannot be denied that in congested districts like South Boston, where the people live in tenements, without spacious rooms for comfort at home, or open fields, the same severity of regulation against the use of the streets cannot be maintained as in more fortunate districts, where the excuse for tarrying on the public ways does not exist.

It cannot be denied that a police system which reckons the officer's standing according to the NUMBER of arrests that he makes is a bad system and would lead to just such abuses as are charged in the case of the Driscoll girl.

It cannot be denied that South Boston is as respectable and law-abiding as any other section of the city, when all circumstances are considered, and that a police practice which puts South Boston in a worse light calls for some investigation.

On the other hand, we have not yet heard the police side of the question. The policeman has at best a very difficult task to perform. We want him to enforce the law and to maintain order. Without the moral support of the community he would be as helpless as any citizen in plain clothes. While we should not hesitate to condemn and punish him for deliberate malice in the performance of his duty, yet we should be slow to accuse him until we have investigated his conduct thoroughly.

The least that can be said concerning the South Boston situation is that it should be PROMPTLY AND CAREFULLY INVESTIGATED. If the facts stated in these resolutions are found to be true, the officers responsible for their existence should be disciplined. If there is justification for the conduct of the police, then the public should give them its moral support.

The Democrats and the Progressives Stand for Letting the Voters Decide the Question of Woman Suffrage

The Democrats of Rhode Island have joined with the Progressives of Massachusetts in the endorsement of woman suffrage. Their recent State convention adopted the following resolution:

"Recognizing the justice of the claims of our womanhood to participate in the government of our State, the Democratic party pledges itself to support suffrage to men and women alike."

The Democrats of Massachusetts have taken no definite position upon the question of woman suffrage as a party, but they did declare last year, and reiterated this year, their belief that the Legislature should submit to the electors of the State the question of woman suffrage.

After both the Democratic and the Progressive party last year had declared in favor of submitting this question to a vote of the citizens, and even after the combined votes of the Democrats and the Progressives proved to be two-thirds of the total vote cast, yet with great difficulty was the Massachusetts Legislature compelled to pass for the first time the resolution submitting the question to the citizens.

Under our constitution the vote must be taken by two successive Legislatures before it is actually put on the ballot for decision by the electors. Therefore the critical struggle will come in the Legislature this year.

The Democrats and the Progressives are again committed to support this resolution. Certain private interests will be marshalled against the passing of this second resolution; but a cause that is right and is vigorously maintained, as the women of Massachusetts have shown their ability to maintain their cause, is rarely ever lost. There is no sound American principle which would justify the denial of the right of the women to have their cause submitted directly to all the voters of Massachusetts.

These Two State Senators Deserve Re-election

Citizens of the First Plymouth and the Fourth Middlesex districts, do not forget on election day Senators Charles E. Burbank of East Bridgewater, and Charles M. Cox of Melrose, who represent your districts respectively.

They are among the ablest and most conscientious and right-viewed men in the public life of Massachusetts today. No men have better records in the Senate. No Democrats could improve upon the votes which they have cast in the upper branch of our Legislature. No Republican would have met the questions which arose in the Senate with a better spirit than they exhibited this year. If Lincoln held the chair of one of them and Charles Sumner held the chair of the other, their votes on all the important questions would probably have been the same.

The way to cultivate faithful public service is to recognize and to reward it when it is found in the public servant.

The "Laughing Cure" for an Aspiring Poet

It Is Quite Right That Each Individual on Earth Should Take Himself Seriously. But to Take One's Self Seriously Does Not Mean Being Morbid or Pessimistic

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

THERE lives in New York City a very gifted poet whose name is Nelson Gardner. This poet is unquestionably possessed of a very high order of talent. His ideas are lofty and his method of expression at times almost Shakespearian, but Nelson Gardner's poetry has not gained the public ear. He has sent many striking poems to various editors and publishers and they have been refused. This has caused the young man to become extremely melancholy, pessimistic and self-centred.

He has written a great many letters to the newspapers, calling down punishment upon the heads of the blind critics who failed to appreciate his gifts. Here is one example of his prose and poetry which he recently sent to an American newspaper:

"A poet of the highest rank now is living, and I, that am he, write to protest against the prolonged denial of my work. As some slight evidence of the lyric gift I claim, the following fragment, selected from a poem containing seven and seventy stanzas in all, forthwith is presented:

"And do the gods no answer give to prayer?
Sloths not protecting deities above?
Naught hold for man to worship or to love?
Yea, and we learn devotion from each dove
Whose wings like snow are white;
for all bright things
Likewise are sacred, and the heart
hath strings
That stretch unto the stars. Then kneel once more,
O spirit that was doubtful, and adore!

"I am prepared to appear before any literary tribunal and prove in one hour's recital how excellent is my art; yet do I feel that never will such hearing be accorded. I must pay with my life the prophet's debt to envy, and not while I live will my song be accepted."

Here are two more of Nelson Gardner's really fine poems which have been refused by the editors:

The dying spirits dance, and likewise drink
For perils of their own fulfilled desire,
For revels vice upon destruction's brink,
And out of pleasure builds the fool his pyre.
The very stars be instruments of ire
Whereby is darkness evermore reproved,
And man, though far from orbs so fair removed,
Still must revere those hierarchs of light,
That, while they garnish, also govern night.
When, after many mediocre years,
By reigning Scribes and Pharisees made mean,
The poet that is prophet too appears,
Through guise most humble is his glory seen.
Not proud is his approach, nor yet serene,
But like a martyr, bleeding, doth he march,
With only heaven for triumphal arch,
Till high as Calvary he dares to climb,
Where sorrow makes his utterance sublime.

"The American Poet"

In each one of his numerous letters to the public press Mr. Gardner signs himself "The American Poet," and indulges in much dramatic and melodramatic utterance anent his verse. Here are two extracts:

"All the false hearts under Heaven cannot prevent the coming of the day when the entire creations from which I above quote will fairly be placed before the great world.

"Bitterly it reflects on prevailing conditions when verse so dignified must be offered in manner so aggressive. For this will the literary authorities that long have denied my work themselves be judged anon."

Again he says:

"In the following stanza I convey the reason for my present denial and approaching doom:

Appealing to impenetrable hearts,
The harp whose note soars highest throbs in vain,
For kindliness, when genius comes, departs
From lesser talent, that itself would regin;
While often culture teaches mean disdain,
Or graces that but gloss, and who shall prize
The voice of verity, by who made wise,
When pride proclaims the priest, and sordid gods
Engender song that sinks and art that nods.

"Though my songs be now disregarded, yet will they live hereafter with the lasting glamor of death.

"THE AMERICAN POET."

There can be no question regarding the literary merit of Mr. Gardner's verse. There is just one criticism which can be passed upon it. It is too much in one tone. However beautiful and grand a strain of music may be, if an entire composition is written in that one strain it soon wearies the ear of the most enthusiastic music lover.

Mr. Gardner needs to vary his music and to study different methods of expression, and he needs to entirely reconstruct his mental methods of thinking about himself. It is quite right that each individual on earth should take himself seriously; each one of us is an expression of Divine Power, and we should not cheapen ourselves by undervaluing our importance in the great universal scheme.

But to take one's self seriously does not mean being morbid or pessimistic, both of which appellations can be applied to Mr. Gardner's attitude. The laughing cure would be a very good thing for "The American Poet" to try. Let him stand before the mirror fifteen minutes every day and laugh at himself and with himself. Then let him try and develop more sympathy for editors in their troublesome and burdened lives and less sympathy for himself, instead of insisting that the world is going to be flung into the depths of shame and humiliation for having refused to recognize his talent.

The Laughing Cure

Let him declare every day of his life that his hour is approaching when he will be read and appreciated by multitudes. A man with such talents possesses the power to bring about their recognition if he uses the right mental weapon. Mr. Gardner should avoid thinking of uttering such sentences as the following, which he sent to a newspaper last February:

"Before my coming there had appeared among the scribes of America but one true singer, Allan Poe. Him they virtually murdered. Now have they me, with as great a gift for the long poem as had Poe for the shorter lay, and behold, I also am doomed."

This is a very foolish way for so gifted a young man to talk. It places him in the list of those whom Jack London has dubbed Sob-Brothers. Yes, the laughing cure is what Mr. Nelson Gardner, "The American Poet," needs.

War and Heredity

While Europe Is Plunged Into Savagery the Representatives of Science Have Been Studying Human Evolution in Far-Off Australia

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

AMIDST the roar of war a quiet voice comes from Melbourne, Australia, speaking the peaceful language of science. It is a voice from the great British Association for the Advancement of Science, which has been holding its annual sessions in that far-off southern land, with as much contempt of the military paroxysm around it as Archimedes exhibited when he kept on with the solution of his mathematical problem while the bloody Roman swords were thrust at his face.

There is a strangely significant connection between the subject discussed by the savants in Australia and the deeds being done in Europe.

They both touch, or are based, upon heredity. The one is a terribly practical illustration of the theoretical doctrines of the other.

The voice from Australia tells us very bluntly that Darwin's famous theory that natural selection, or the survival of the fittest, as the great motive force in evolutionary advance is out of date and discredited.

"Modern research," says Prof. William Bateson in his presidential address to the great scientific association; "modern research lends not the smallest encouragement or sanction to the view that gradual evolution occurs by the transformation of masses of individuals, though that fancy has fixed itself on popular imagination."

And he avers, also, with even greater decisiveness of speech: "Almost the last shred of that teleological fustian" (teleology in the sense here used means purposive design in nature) "with which Victorian philosophy loved to clothe the theory of evolution is destroyed."

The new view advocated by Professor Bateson suggests that the variations which result in evolutional changes all lie hidden in the germ of living things, and are not added from without by the effect of experience and environment.

"At first," says Professor Bateson, "it may seem rank absurdity to suppose that the primordial form or forms of protoplasm could have contained complexity enough to produce the divers types of life. But it is easier to imagine that these powers could have been conveyed by extrinsic additions? Of what nature could these additions be?"

And then he goes on: "That primordial life may have been of small dimensions need not disturb us. Quantity is of no account in these considerations. Shakespeare once existed as a speck of protoplasm not so big as a small pin's head. To this nothing was added that would not equally well have served to build up a baboon or a rat. * * * I have confidence that the artistic gifts of mankind will prove to be due not to something ADDED to the makeup of an ordinary man but to the ABSENCE of factors which in the normal person inhibit the development of these gifts. They are, almost without doubt, to be looked upon as RELEASES of powers normally suppressed. The instrument is there, but it is 'stopped down.'"

This is really a far more comforting view of evolution than that which Darwin took. If our good and bad qualities do not come to us from without, by slow changes requiring millions of years, but lie all packed up in the germ of life, waiting to be released, the chance for rapid improvement is so much the greater. And this accords with the teaching of recent experiments. Look at what Luther Burbank has drawn out of the illimitable store of tendencies underlying plant life! At his touch, as it were, previously unknown beauty of form and of color have come forth, as if COMPELLED to show themselves by the power of enchantment. But what his wand has really done has been to set into operation the "releases" of which Professor Bateson speaks. And every reader knows how marvellously quick have been many of the transformations. In a few years new flowers of unexampled beauty, and new fruits of matchless qualities, have been caused to flourish in magical abundance!

But many readers will also recall those unspeakable, abhorrent, monstrous forms that Mr. Burbank has occasionally called forth, and which he relentlessly destroyed on sight. Their kind, too, lie in wait in the original germ. Burbank could instantly crush those that his hand had summoned into active existence, but when malign tendencies arise in the more complex life of humanity they are not so easily dealt with. The artistic faculties of man, says Professor Bateson, have been developed from within. But so have the monstrous faculties of destructiveness that are now raging unrestrained over Europe. They were among the first to be developed in the human being, and at their appearance, unhappily, no controlling hand suppressed them. But we may truly hope that their very excess of ferocious activity will lead to their elimination, and that the change may come with the rapidity of one of the critical mutations that sometimes manifest themselves in lower life forms.

THE FAVORITE

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

He is sought after, always invited,
And always surrounded by girls;
No part of his wardrobe is slighted,
No jewels are his except pearls.
There is something distinguished and jaunty
In the way that he knots his cravat;
He is always bedecked in what is correct—
You could bet your last dollar on that.

His manners—oh, such perfect manners!
He tangoes like some airy sprite.
Though his dad used to jig with the tanners
When the slogan was "Gals to the right!"
He is slender and graceful and proper,
He knows all society's ways,
And every affair finds Percival there
Divine to the feminine gaze.

His strength is the strength of a baby,
His mind is the mind of a dunce;
He might have been somebody, maybe,
Had he lived among men and not runts.
And therefore in pity I toast him,
This youth with the wrong kind of start;
These verses were going to roast him,
But somehow I haven't the heart.
